

INTRO

America can be best described as the only place in history that has miraculously gone from Barbarism to Degeneration, without the usual intervening long period of Civilization.

For Example ...

Making George W Bush president of the United States was, by far, the worst example of child abuse ever recorded.

And it appears that at least half of the country participated in this gory deed. It wasn't just a case of Papa Tex passing the reins of government to Baby Tex as they did in North Korea. It was achieved using Democracy. Instead of the normal human emotions of sympathy for Baby Tex, they VOTED for him. Surely some human rights group should have been motivate do do something at this point. But ... not a word was heard ... not even a whisper, nor a breeze from any art ... not even from the wind they call Mariah.

How he didn't 'accidentally' hit the Big Red Button whilst in a thumping tantrum about the re-run of the Dukes of Hazzard being cancelled on TV - is more than just amazing, folks. It is definitive proof that God really does exist after all. Or it is proof that the extra-terrestrials are surely defending the little bit of civilization that is still remaining on this lovely Earth.

What went wrong in America? SERIOUSLY ... WHAT WENT WRONG?

Of all the great revolutions throughout history (French, Russian, Chinese, South African, Iranian ... and I believe Ireland is there also) probably the greatest of all was the American Revolution. And it was the first ... and it really inspired the rest of us. The Constitution of the USA is still one of Earth's great documents. The Founding Fathers at that time were as advanced as anything Europe had produced and the America they envisioned was the best the Earth had achieved to that date. Of course, the Constitution (and the men who produced it) wasn't perfect but it was as good as the Earth had got. It's very important to know that.

And then ... from the sublime to the ridiculous ... America went from the Founding Fathers to George W Bush and his two puppeteers, Chaney and Rumsfeld.

SO ... WHAT WENT WRONG?

The Anglo-Saxon Dictionary

The Anglo-Saxons are the only people on Earth who speak just one language and their attempts at other languages are a hilarious cacophony of mispronunciations because they don't use the proper sounds of the Greek alphabet - like the rest of us Europeans.

For Example ...

The first sound a baby makes on planet Earth is A, that is why it is the first letter in the alphabet for all languages. English people pronounce this exact same letter as Er.

And that is why they don't have a painter or a plumber in England, they have a painta and a plumba etc. (Even in boys comics Batman doesn't Ka-Pow a bad guy, he Ker-Pows him.) And it gets even more mind-bending and moronic as you go further down the alphabet. G, J and K are the most common letters that the Anglo-Saxons can't pronounce at all - leading to hilarious mispronunciations which, of course, the Anglo-Saxons believe the rest of the world is mispronouncing (because they are bereft of basic cultural education).

Their 'education' system trains their people to speak 'well' and present themselves 'well' but doesn't educate them at all. English brain surgeons and rocket scientists don't know where Egypt is on the map (they'd be hard pressed to find England or America either).

The vocabulary of the English language was clearly not invented by the Anglo-Saxons. Their original language is very similar to their original German (when they left there 1,500 years ago and before the German language became sophisticated). It's a sound very reminiscent of the sounds they still make whilst vomiting out their chips and beer or watching their women-folk fist fighting and pissing whilst standing up.

After the Norman/French invasion in 1066, the 'English' language became roughly 75% French. Tragically, this beautiful French language is now spoken with an English accent which nobody on Earth can understand - especially not the French.

As a result of their uncultured, hooligan society, the English then evolved a lexicon akin to Cockney Rhyming Slang - in other words, what they say bears no resemblance to what they mean. It has a completely different meaning - impossible to decipher by cultured people.

NOTE

I don't hate Anglo-Saxon people (the best man at my wedding and many girls I dated throughout my life were English) but I really hate their disgusting, imperialist, mass-murdering past. And you don't have to be genetically Anglo-Saxon to be ASS (Anglo-Saxon scum). Just like the red ants who become incorporated into the black ant sphere, identify themselves as black ants, fight on the side of the black ants and even invade the ant-hills of the red ants and kill their own red ants ... their own people.

And so, my Anglo-Saxon Dictionary is an attempt to explain, to cultured people, some of what the ASS say and what they really mean. (Feel free to contact me and add more - apparently, this is just the tip of a very large iceberg).

I will kick-off with benign non-threatening stuff before moving to the truly horrific reality that the ASS has brought to this lovely planet.

unclesamunclesamunclesamunclesamunclesayunclesam

Restroom = Toilet. All creatures on Earth have to poo and pee, except Americans. They just go to the toilet to 'rest' (presumably they lie on the floor as there doesn't appear to be a chair or a reclining sofa in these places) and hence their toilets are called Restrooms.

Powder Room = Yes, it's that unmentionable, pesky Toilet again. Female toilet, presumably. Where women go to 'Freshen Up' and presumptively to Rest also. Although the term Powder Room could well be adequately applied to both men's and women's public toilets today as it is the place normally used for Snorting Cocaine.

Bathroom = And, would you believe it, this also means Toilet. Tragically, we in other English-speaking countries use this term also because we have a bath / shower in our toilet. So, the same little room is used for having a bath or a shower and also for having a poo or a pee (hopefully, we are advanced enough to not try and attempt a shower in the toilet bowl and, equally hopefully, we do not pee or poo in the shower or bath).

The Europeans are way more advanced than us in this department. Sensibly, they always have the toilet bowl and its cistern separate from the washing room but this created some confusion when I went to live there. When visiting someone, I might ask for the bathroom. Although obviously confused as to why I wanted to have a shower in their place, but being too polite to ask why - they would direct me to the bathroom only to discover there was nothing for me to pee into. I quickly learned that the little room - normally beside their bathroom was the place to pee in - and poo also, should the ambience there overwhelm you.

Suffice it is to say that, the room we pee and poo in, Americans use that very same room for very different reasons like lying down on the floor to get some well-deserved rest, or 'fixing their faces' while freshening up or snorting their cocaine or having a shower or a full on bath with soap gels and shampoos and conditioners and a Squeaky Duck or two.

They have a whole plethora of other names also - Conveniences, Facilities etc. Can you imagine the confusion of the poor Aliens, pre-invasion, trying to decipher the codes the Earthlings are using?

I shudder to think how the Americans pee and poo, if ever their Puritanical background allows them to do such a heinous, disgusting thing.

(Presumably, they open the tiny window and, with God-almighty wiggling, get their enormous bums positioned outside while perilously hanging on to the window casings and unleash to the innocent population below their bountiful pee and poo - as they did back in Merrye Olde England before they were pushed out and onto the Mayflower. Old habits die hard, it appears.)

Making Love = Having Sex. (Sorry, this is another big one, just like the following one, but fundamental to understanding ASS thinking.)

Just like having a pee or poo, all creatures on Earth (with the possible exception of the flying insect called the mayfly) have sex with each other. That is how they propagate their species. Surely, even Americans, with their abysmal general education system, must understand something as basic as that.

However, Americans are, strangely, the only mammals who do not have sex. Repeat, Americans do not have sex. Instead, they make love.

The term 'Making Love' actually means, as in all of nature, the male using whatever charm he has to woo the female, but in America it means a man shagging a woman. Presumably, they do this when they are not invading other people's countries and murdering the cultured people there or maybe that is how they are expressing their Anglo-Saxon LOVE. Who knows?

(But, it appears, they do use the proper term - sex - when it is a rape situation or a homosexual or lesbian encounter.)

Therefore, why is it not the case that, when an American man goes to a prostitute, he makes love to her. When he is gang banged in some initiation ritual by 10 scumbag guys, they all made love to him. When he goes to a dominatrix who whips the bejaesus outa him, she makes love to him. It's an enigma, is it not?

Aside

Can some American please tell me what is happening in the American mind? Clearly, the Puritan mind who murdered all the cultured Native Americans, doesn't allow the word 'sex' as something that happens among consenting adults.

Apparently, sex is a horrific thing to do but Manifest Destiny and Predestination are what God wants his Protestant people to do to non-Protestant people i.e. invade their countries, mass-murder them, rape and enslave the survivors and steal whatever resources they have. In the past it was their land - now it's their oil.

Make Love = Have Sex. Just to recap here for the slow learners ... according to Anglo-Saxon Americans, all creatures on Earth have sex except humans. Humans (especially Anglo-Saxon humans) are the most violent and destructive species on Earth ... but they don't have sex like all the other species who live in harmony with the Earth ... humans make love.

Self Love = Masturbation. Can any normal person possibly imagine that one? Masturbation is something all primates have done for at least the past two million years - since the very beginning of our human evolution. All we know is that the modern primates masturbate - just like all us human primates masturbate.

So, self-love doesn't mean someone with an over inflated sense of their self worth, who looks down on 'lesser' humans. No. It's the ASS demonstrating their inability to deal with sex.

Passed / Passed Away / Passed On = Died. Hello! That's what happened to him? He died. Just like they can't say 'he was Having Sex' they also can't say 'he Died'.

So 'he was having sex when he died' is tragic but we all understand what happened there. However, Americans must say 'he was making love when he passed' - which makes no sense at all to anyone normal who hasn't read my Anglo-Saxon Dictionary.

(The French refer to 'coming off' (i.e. reaching orgasm) as Petit Mort which means 'Little Death'. I love this expression because it describes absolutely what happens to me when I finally come off after about 90 minutes of awesome shagging (no joking, ladies). I have to cram the pillow into my mouth in a futile attempt to prevent the demonic scream that is about to emerge from me which will definitely wake up the entire neighbourhood and they will sit up, relieved, on their beds and smoke a cigarette. And all the cemetery graves will open - right back to the Early 14th Century - and the dead will come to life, casually sit on their gravestones and also have a leisurely cigarette whilst I wind down ... as best I can.)

Somehow, Americans have a huge need to find some gibberish words to describe the most basic thing about life on Earth. We all die - we don't pass it by. We are born, we live awhile and then we die. Americans are eternal pubescent teenagers - hence concepts like a person dying is very alien to them and is, therefore, downright unacceptable.

(Actually, I feel guilty about this one because I have a very strong belief in the Afterlife and I like the expression 'Passed'. But having said that : my father died and my mother died and my brother died. You can't imagine how much I wish they were here and I can't wait to meet them again when I die because, as sure as day follows night, I will also die. 'Die' is not a problem word to say. That's all. When your physical body dies, you just cast it aside and move on to a bigger reality. And you definitely do not die. So 'Passed' is a good word.)

The house I was born in (literally born in) is about 160 years old and that same house site was inhabited for at least 1,000 or maybe 2,000 years before I was born in it. The house I now live in (in Dublin) is about 180 years old. So many families lived and died here before me.

Yes, ghosts are real and do inhabit a house ... or a place ... or a person. It is one of the many curious parts of our human existence with no one explanation that fits all situations. Sometimes a ghost experience can be scary but sometimes it's not.

(In my THE OCCULT section, I describe living for 21 months with a ghost. He was fine when I was alone there with him ... no problem. But, if I brought in a girl and had sex with her, he went completely ballistic. But he went completely ballistic - on her, not me. Clearly, she had ruffled his ghostly feathers, somehow.)

Ghosts are something from another dimension or parallel universe or portal or WHATEVER. But it is not something to be scared of. Well ... not really! For us non-American children, it was a part of growing up and experiencing the mystery of the world we are in.

Understand that in American there doesn't appear to be any ghosts whatsoever. Children are being brought up on devils and demons, flesh-eating and blood-drinking monsters, ghouls and cryptids of horrifying proportions etc. A new cryptid is discovered every year.

There are no normal ghosts, just extreme demonic stuff. Non-stop brutal violence on TV and Movies and Video games - to traumatise even further the developing mind of a child - and leave it in a terrible messed-up state for the rest of its life.

(This will be discussed further - but now back to the ASS Dictionary.)

Terrorists = The people who lived on the land and owned the land before the Anglo-Saxons invaded and forcibly took it from them. It normally refers to the 'survivors' of the exterminations. Dead terrorists are no threat to them. 'The only good Injun is a dead Injun' refers to the survivors of the ASS mass murder in America and who still posed a threat. Just like people like me in Ireland. The English still didn't kill us all.

Peace Talks = Talks designed to keep the colonised people further colonised with some under-the-table 'incentives' to the corrupt natives. (Terrorists normally don't attend 'Peace Talks' while their land is still being occupied. Damn those Pesky Terrorists!)

Collateral Damage = This doesn't refer to the ecosystem or climate or anything else being damaged. This refers to the innocent and undefended civilians who were slaughtered during the illegal bombardment, mass murder and occupation.

Take Them Out = And, here's me like a schmuck, thinking that we were to be taken out somewhere nice. Unfortunately, it is not an invitation to be taken to some pub, restaurant or cinema or even something high-brow like a theatre. Yes, maybe you guessed the Anglo-Saxon lexicon at this point that it probably wasn't something endearing like that. Tragically, to all you tragic Anglophile trash out there ... this means KILLING innocent people.

Peace = That blissful state where the people who own the land we now occupy accept their status as landless slaves without rights. It is necessary for us war monger, uncultured thugs to fight with all our might ... for this Peace. To 'pacify' the natives is crucial to Imperialism.

Obstacles to Peace = Recognition of basic human rights and other unrealistic demands that the people, whose lands we stole, are attempting to impose on us.

Further Peace Talks = More talks designed to keep the colonised people further subjugated and colonised. (Terrorists normally don't attend Further Peace Talks either while their land is still being occupied because, well, you know ... they are terrorists. There are many such examples of what 'terrorists' are, too numerous to outline here, but here are some examples ...)

* the American terrorists who fought the British Empire in the colonies and were successful in getting the Brits out of America and create the USA.

* terrorists like Nelson Mandela and his ANC who got black people accepted as equal humans in South Africa, despite the massive oppression by the white Afrikaans and ASS.

* the never-ending oppression of a people by England - agreed by most historians as the worst in history - Ireland. After 800 years of hell, the Irish rebels, recently known as the IRA, were able to establish the Irish Republic with liberty and equality for all and, more recently, gave a semblance of normality to an apartheid place like Northern Ireland.

Department of Defence = Department of Attack. This is the Government department that everyone in the state contributes to in the form of income tax that finances heavily-armed scum, affectionately known in American media as 'Brave Men and Women' to leave their own country and invade other people's countries in order to steal whatever resources that are there (in the past it was their land - now it is their oil) and take what we want from them and kill anyone who opposes us.

For example, except for the Danes who controlled a lot of Northern England during Viking times, England was only invaded once - in 1066 - by their own people. America was never invaded but they both still continue to call their invading murder machine - the Department of 'Defence'. Anglo-Saxons have continually attacked and invaded everyone else on every continent on Earth for the past 800 years and they call this ... the Department of Defence.

Take Care of Someone = You'd think this referred to something altruistic like looking after someone who needed help but, tragically, again it means ... To Kill Someone. This is normally someone who doesn't like us occupying their country or stealing their resources. (There are many similar expressions including 'Taking Care of Business'.)

Put Down = To Kill someone or something (This is normally used in relation to animals, but humans or anything at all is acceptable for us to put down).

Mopping Up = This is not cleaning up the blood of the dead defenders of the country we invaded. This means killing the remaining people who survived our initial invasion and bombardment. Survivors that we caught are mopped up.

Freedom = This means that there is no obstacles to stop us invading other countries, killing the people there and stealing their resources. ('Defending Freedom' has always been of paramount importance to us ASS war mongers who run American politicians and military.)

They Lost their Land = We Stole their Land. It does not mean that the people who owned the land mislaid it somewhere and can't remember where they put it. (Does anyone know where I put my land? I had it a few days ago - I'm absolutely sure I did. But it's gone.)

It means we Anglo-Saxons came into their land and took it from them by force. Anyone who resisted us were killed and the rest were allowed to be second-class, landless labourers - unless we felt like killing them at any point in the future.

In Ulster, where I come from, this was the term used for all the men they murdered and the women and children forced off their land where they died of cold and starvation in the wilderness and woods. This mass murder was referred to as - 'They Lost Their Land.'

Theatre of Operations = No, sorry, I know what you're thinking ... but it has nothing to do with surgical procedures and health care in hospitals. It is the term given to the places where we are mass murdering people in their own country.

Unpopular War = This is the term given to a war where the people we invaded kicked the shit out of us and we had to run as quickly as we can out of there.

My favourite is where the American Marines (heavy duty military scumbags trained to be extremely brutal and pumped up with the usual drugs, were sent into the cultured city of Beirut ... and, on the day they arrived, one person killed 241 of these Marines.

Time to get out boys! And so the Americans pulled out their remaining living scumbags the following day, never to return. The shortest ASS invasion in history.

I haven't been able to get this guy's name to this date but – my God ... was he a hero. Like the Irish heroes who fought against the Anglo-Saxon mass murderers for 800 years in Ireland - that guy is as good as it gets. Can you imagine the amount of innocent girls and women who were not raped and the huge amount of men and boys not killed for fun by these ASS.

(If anyone knows this suicide-bomber's name ... please inform me. She was probably a girl - just like the girls who beat this American trash in Vietnam and throughout all of South East Asia when I was a boy.)

Liberate a Country = Invade a Country. The Americans with their Liberty flags and WW2 Liberty ships (George Bush even had a name change for French Fries to Liberty Fries, God love the poor retard) have been 'liberating' so many countries for so long. To prop up their 'right' to have as many cars as they want and destroying the Earth as much as they want, they MUST invade other countries to steal the resources to do this ... especially OIL.

They invaded Iraq to 'liberate' it, they invaded Afghanistan to 'liberate' it etc. etc. This is the official reason for the invasions and I'm sure anyone can see why the American electorate are deliberately kept mind-bendingly stupid with absolutely zero education.

Aside

After the D-Day landings in Normandy, the Americans reached the small city of Caen. It was completely destroyed - rubble and bodies everywhere. The American commander said 'Goddam Germans'.

He was then informed that the Germans had done nothing there. This destruction was all the result of American Liberation. His response was ... 'We sure Liberated the hell outa this place.'

In the most spectacular act of cowardice in world history, the Anglo-Saxon Americans and British had hid in England for three years waiting for the Germans to beat the Russians. But the Russians beat the Germans. They had 25 million of their people killed doing it - but they did it.

Suddenly, these ASS cowards invades France - not to 'liberate' West Europe, but to stop the Russians reaching the west coast of France ... the Atlantic Ocean.

War Becoming Increasingly Unpopular = No, it does not mean that the Anglo-Saxon mass murderers have had a Road to Damascus change of heart about slaughtering the people they have invaded.

It means they are getting the shit kicked out of them and they don't like it - not one little bit.

And, as Anglo-Saxons have a new war every year or two for the past 800 years or so, it does not mean that their latest war is sliding down the charts (as in Top of the Pops when I was a boy). It means that a few local untrained guys and girls are kicking the shit outa them since they invaded. (The ASS are normally told that they can do whatever they want to the 'natives' who are normally only armed with fruit like tomatoes and bananas.)

Despatch Them = And, would you believe it, guess what it means? No folks, to those not aware of the situation yet. It's not to send letters and parcels through the postal system. Yes folks, that's right, it means to Kill Them.

Carpet Bombing = No, No, No! Believe me. It's not about taking stubborn stains out of carpets or floor coverings or anything remotely similar to that. It is, believe it or not, the dropping of bombs from a very safe high altitude in order to mass murder the unprotected civilians, with no military or industrial target whatsoever.

The Anglo-Saxon Scum (the ASS) are notorious for this tactic in the past century. Whenever these cowards met men face to face, they got their ass severely kicked and the men who beat them were smaller and poorly armed - but they were MEN and not cowards.

Besides the mass murder of millions in South East Asia when I was a boy, the most horrific during WW2 was the English mass murder in Dresden in 1945 - a city that was not part of the German war effort. All the men there were dead or still fighting the Russians on the Eastern Front. There was no men defending the city.

The English air force dropped never-ending incendiary bombs. The unprotected city was burned to the ground and at least 250,000 German women and children and old people were murdered in one night. Most of the German dead were running from farther East and were not documented - this was a well known tactic the ASS used so many times.

For Example ...

In the Great Irish Famine (1845 - 1850) coordinated by the English occupation, they causally say that less than one million died. It was way over two million who were murdered. (Naturally, the English 'Show's Yer Tits' newspapers tell their retarded 'readers' that only about 20,000 people died that night in Dresden. And that is what the Anglo-Saxons believe to this day because that's what their scum media and scum history tell them.)

Hitting On Someone = Strangely enough, this is not punching, kicking, hitting or killing someone which one might be forgiven for believing in light of the other dictionary entries. This, actually, means chatting up a member of the opposite gender or just plain having sex (sorry, making love) with someone. But love and sex are far too nice and sweet so the ASS must call it something violent like ... hitting. I'm sure you understand! Cool, isn't it! ... eh?

Hit Me = Contact me. Who, in their right mind, could have imagined that's what it meant. But that's what it means. I swear to the living God! And may He smite me down lest I lie.

Game Animals = It's not animals that are full of life and delight in playing games with each other and with humans. No Sirree! It's animals that are born and bred to be killed ... for fun.

Animals that are full of life and that life will be taken from them by some Anglo-Saxon scum.

They are not killed for food, they are only killed so that some Anglo mass-murdering low-life can have his fun and entertainment.

It used to be humans they killed for fun - all over the world - but in these modern times, there are laws against killing humans. Amazing, but true. OK their 'prisons' may only be a year or two in some 4 star Hotel, but still it's an inconvenience for these scum. For this reason, the ASS have to resort to just using animals that they breed and feed and grow up, in order to kill them for fun. It is not their meat they need ... it's their murder they need.

Gamekeeper = No. Sorry. That's not it. It's not a custodian who looks after the games we play and someone we go to when we want to play a game. It's a person employed to breed and protect animals, so that his Anglo-Saxon employer can kill them for fun.

(Eerily, the terminology used in modern ASS media is very similar to the terminology used in the nightmare future world envisaged by George Orwell many decades ago.)

unclesamunclesamunclesamunclesamunclesayunclesam

But let's continue with this impossible-to-decipher ASS Dictionary ...

It will blow you away = It will amaze you.

It will kill you = It will really amaze you.

Take him out = Again it doesn't refer to taking a man out on the town for his entertainment and happiness. Tragically – again it means to kill him.

Take your dirty laundry out = Ditto. There is no washing of dirty clothes or anything along those lines at all. I'm sure you know by now what the lovely Anglo-Saxons mean.

Softening Them Up = Bombing them. Again a person must be forgiven for believing it has something to do with fabric softeners (or even hand skin softeners for protection against incessant washing) or something like that. Alas, again it means mass murdering people from a safe distance - just like all cowards do.

Cleaned Them Out = Tragically, again it has nothing to do with laundry and it doesn't mean cleaning the people we forced into the mud. Actually, it means we killed the remaining survivors who were still alive and still holding out, defending their land.

Lady Killers = Strangely, or for some unknown reason maybe known to Anglo-Saxon, this means the opposite to what a normal, non Anglo-Saxon person, would believe. This does not mean serial killers of women. It actually means a guy who is good at seducing women and giving them (presumably) a good time in bed.

Neutralise = Kill

Bumped off = Killed

Ordinance = Guns, Bombs and other Killing Stuff.

It's not Regulations or Ordinance Survey Maps that you might have hitherto thought it was.

Shells = Bullets (or bullet casings) And not the delicate crustations you collected on a beach when you were young and wonderful.

Slugs = Bullets. Like many people, I have slugs in my garden. They are a lovely response that keeps harmony in all of nature. (Terribly sorry, you ASS scumbags, it means bullets.)

Retired = Killed. (this term is normally used in relation to horses – the Anglo-Saxons are much kinder to animals than to humans. Bless them.)

Set About = This one is a bit difficult. Of course it means to Kill (or to beat someone up badly). But how the ASS combined these two words to have this meaning is a mystery to me. (Feel free all you ASS experts to contribute an explanation.)

Liberate = To bomb the shit out of everyone and everything so that we can own the place. Generally, the place being 'liberated' never asked to be liberated.

Pick him off = It doesn't mean to rescue a man from a perilous situation, like hanging from a cliff by his finger nails. As you've probably guessed by now ... it means to kill him.

Lost to History = Stolen by us. This is clever propaganda and is believed as real by the moronic victims of incessant propaganda.

In their mind (did I say 'mind') they will see this Lost to History as 'History' himself staggering home one night inebriated after some major libations in a nearby hostelry and losing his keys or money or whatever. And he has absolutely no idea where he 'lost' it.

No, that's not what happened. The perpetrators of this massacre, extermination, looting, degradation etc. have just erased the facts from the history accounts and they desperately don't want these facts to be found again. (Contact me if you are intrigued - I will probably know what the 'lost' bits are.)

Pacify = Murder all resistance. Pacify means to bring Peace. Lovely and almost Messianic, isn't it? Trust me, there is no Messiah involved in Anglo-Saxon pacification.

To pacify a people means the ASS have to murder any person who is still alive and is defending their land and protecting their females and culture and civilization.

Mandate = British Mandate. I'm sure, in our modern world, mandate must mean a homosexual website where guys want to meet British men (why any gay guy would want this is beyond imagination as British men are supposedly notoriously deficient in the penis department which explains their extreme violence - according to all the women and gay men in the rest of Europe).

Tragically, it's not something as benign as a gay website. It's the usual occupation, degradation, killing and abuse of the people who own the land the ASS have a 'mandate' upon. So it means the same as you've probably surmised. Mandate means the occupation, dehumanisation, brutalisation and murder of the people in that country.

Protectorate = Occupation. Deep down, everyone knows that a foreign army who invades and occupies another country is not there to 'protect' the people of the country being occupied. They can't even speak their language. Hello!

Every Anglo-Saxon dragging their knuckles on the ground, knows this. The term is used because it sounds nicer than Occupation or Colonization or Controlling etc. and any Anglo-Saxon, with a semi conscience (should there be one), can sleep easier in their beds believing they may be 'protecting' this place ... whilst the killing and brutalization of the local population continues unabated outside their bedrooms.

Aliens = Not Anglo-Saxon or outside the Anglo-Saxon sphere of influence / control.

Thankfully, the same term is used to describe the extra-terrestrials who are keeping a close watch on this lovely planet since the ASS used nuclear bombs to mass-murder everyone in two cities in Japan in 1945.

They have repeatedly neutralized American nuclear weapons - on the ground and in the air - to let them know that this Earth is not theirs to destroy.

It's a comforting thought because the American military are desperately trying to prevent this information being made known to it's people, who are deliberately being kept stupid.

Tragically, the Aliens never gave us non-ASS any guarantee that they are protecting us and also it would be very difficult for them to neutralise all airborne missiles from America, Russia, China, wherever at the same time - during a nuclear Armageddon.

The Spanish Flu = The American Flu.

(This is just the tip of an absolutely huge Anglo-Saxon mountain of deliberate misinformation and propaganda throughout the world - staggering beyond imagination. So, I will not go further with this ... except to say that the misinformation and propaganda is HUGE and Joseph Goebbles was a total beginner compared to it.)

- The Great Flu of 1918 devastated the world. At least 100 million people died - many times more than died in the First World War (1914 - 1918).
- Science still doesn't know what caused it - they know more about the Black Death of 1348. But they do know, for sure, that it began in the USA.
- Back then, the Anglo-Saxon military suddenly saw the 'potential' of this amazing weapon they had - as they had just declared war against Germany. So they said nothing about it and shipped the infected, dying soldiers to Europe.
- The plan was to use a plague like this to finally beat Germany because the Brits were seriously losing the war and getting their ass seriously kicked.

Aside

This was an old military tactic that the God-Worshipping Protestant Americans resurrected.

Previous to this, the surviving 'Indians' were still living on the Plains and West of America - trying to cling on to the little bit of remaining barren land that was allocated to them and that they were desperately trying to protect.

The Anglo-Saxons had massacred all the buffalo. As a result, the Indians were starving and had no warm clothing. So, presenting it as a peace gesture, they gave them gifts of warm winter blankets.

This 'gesture' was gratefully received by the starving, noble Indians for their women and children ... who had no idea that the blankets were infected with smallpox. The Indians had no immunity against this alien virus and were decimated. All of them dying a horrific death.

- Anyway, their WW1 plan misfired. Although the Germans suffered big casualties because of this Biological Warfare, the death rate was much higher amongst the Allies and, tragically, also in many innocent places still occupied by the Anglo Saxon Scum, like Ireland.

Relieved = Stolen. This sordid word is used when the ASS invaded and stole everything the people had. Beginning in Ireland 800 years ago and spreading to all the continents of the Earth, everything of value was stolen - especially land.

The impression given by this expression is that the owners were very grateful that the ASS came and relieved them of this horrendous burden they were carrying - cash and land etc.

Kill = Coill and Cill. When the ASS invaded Ireland, the first thing they did was to remove the identity of the people to be massacred and a few kept alive to be slaves on the land they always owned. Place-names were a problem to these English trash.

Coill means woodland and Cill means church. They have a similar sound in Gaelic - especially to the ASS. So they translate all these names as ... well, what else ... KILL.

English people constantly remark - I'll attempt to translate their thick English brogue - Sho, you Oirish like to kill, roi. All yor plasches are coll'd kill.'

IN SUMMARY...

There's no point in delving further into the mountain of ASS propaganda at this point.

Disinformation is crucial when leading people into the New Dark Ages. Worshipping 'royal' families and burning witches is the inevitable future.

We are already living in the 'Social Media' generation (the 'Porn generation'). They can barely read or write and couldn't be bothered to research anything (it's so boring compared to all the violence and porn they watch), so they know nothing - and their children will know less.

And, if you tell them the basics, they will instantly hate you. Their 'information' only comes from some illiterate violent idiot with a huge ass or huge tits or a huge cock. They are the nihilistic, violent, subservient robots that were designed by the military who control their lives.

But, deep down, I believe that (if the American mass murder machine will spare this lovely Earth) there is a New Renaissance coming - maybe a generation or two away. But I believe (or desperately cling to the belief) that it is inevitable in human evolution.

EDUCATION

Education is just never-ending advertising, disguised as information, with brutalisation and violence as the recurring themes - and eternal obsequious Junk food, available on every corner presented as good and healthy and perfect for your children's body and mind.

While I was living in Europe (mainland Europe), an American educationalist once heard me speaking about this terrible lack of basic education in the USA and interrupted me ...

American Educationalist : You have no idea how bad it is.

Me : (taken aback) Wow! ... and here's me thinking it's really bad. Pray explain, sir.

American Educationalist : Did you know that 50% of American schoolchildren don't even know where America is ... on the map. When asked, the children identify Russia, because that is the biggest country on the map (next comes China, Antarctica or Canada).

Everyone (even Americans deep down) know that their children are being brought up on a steady dose of extreme violence, junk education, junk entertainment, junk world awareness and junk food. Their general education is the worst in the developed world. Even Britain is better, but Britain has the lowest general education in Europe.

There is no doubt that American children are being deliberately brought up to be the cannon fodder for current and future wars.

Keep them stupid, keep them removed from normal human empathy, keep them filled up with never-ending violence against everyone that isn't American. And, before they can reach the age of reason (if such a thing is possible) get them into the army and keep them invading other people's countries and stealing more oil for the rich oil imperialist scumbags who kept them uneducated and moronic and who have no problem allowing them to be blown to bits every day.

The American war-mongers know that their own children won't be in the invading army and, therefore, won't be killed.)

Everything American children 'know' about the world comes from TV and the movies. There is no agency to tell them that what they see there is NOT REAL. The real world does exist but what they see on TV and movies is fantasy, normally for propaganda purposes, is REALITY.

Recent Update

For a few years gone by, I did Airbnb in Dublin and met many lovely Americans. (The Europeans, especially Eastern Europeans, have so much to learn from Americans about how to smile and be friendly and, generally, to be nice people to meet.) However ...

- 🍅 One group, late 20s, nice and friendly etc. were not interested in my free local history walk - which I offered to all my guests. I explained that it was the Norwegian Vikings who founded the first settlement here, 1,200 years ago, and called it Dublin - from the Gaelic Dubh Linn (Black Pool).

I had lived in Norway for two years and they are lovely people etc. But nothing I said seemed to impress these young Americans in any way.

Me : Can I ask you ... is there a reason why you are not interested?

They : Sorry man. Thanks for the offer - it's just that we know all about the Vikings. There was a series on TV called 'The Vikings' and we all watched it.

Try to understand, these nice people genuinely thought that the extreme brutal violence and gratuitous sex they watched on television is REAL ... an historical depiction of the Vikings. Jesus Christ!

Why hasn't any authority, in the USA, told them that everything they watch on their TV is there for entertainment purposes only. Or to put it another way it's for entertainment purposes only. Or, in other words, what you Americans are seeing on your TV History IS NOT REAL.

And American 'entertainment' has to be about gratuitous violence and brutal sex - any educational stuff would be banned - because you can't breed a nation of willing cannon fodder soldiers who will be prepared to invade cultured countries and kill the people there, if you make the horrible mistake of educating them.

The children of the Bushs, Chaney, Rumsfelds, Trumps etc. etc. are not being blown to bits to invade oil-rich countries and steal oil for America. No way! The American leadership give that special privilege of being front line troops to the poverty stricken people who are given no education but are given lots and lots of extreme violence as fun and entertainment throughout their abused lives.

And those illiterate and heavily abused but heavily armed 'adults' invade all the countries that are awash with oil and are told that these countries are enemies of America and must be killed and their resources (oil) stolen.

🍷 Another group who stayed with me was three men in their 30s, literate and a joy to meet. While they were with me, the American presidential election happened. Donald Trump was elected. This was not possible for me to understand (not because I'm an historian, it's because I'm a normal man). The extreme violent underbelly of the USA, that has always been there but camouflaged by 'Democracy', suddenly erupted to the surface. And like any volcano or tsunami, it took every normal person by surprise.

When I returned home that evening, the three guys were there. I launched into a tirade which I was sure they would have readily accepted. I paraphrase some of what I said.

Me : Guys. Did you hear the news? Donald Trump has been elected. This is a disaster. It's not possible that any nation would elect this complete imbecile without some major threat that all their children will be killed or something. What the hell is happening over there? Surely, even the idiots didn't vote for this guy.

They : (when my anger subsided somewhat) Well - we all voted for Donald Trump.

Speechless as I understandably was, they explained that they didn't like the dynastic family control of politics in the USA. I agreed with that but tried to explain, as best I could, that surely nobody would elect a complete retard as a substitute - a birdbrain who now has his finger on the button that will destroy the entire Earth - whenever, he feels like it - or, by accident, whenever he is in a thumping rage about something. (Of course, he and his crony 'elite' will escape - to places deeply underground like Dulce and under Denver airport. But not the rest of us, including the people like you who voted for him.)

However, these guys were nice and meant me or the world no harm - so who was I to rain on their parade (however dubious and deserving to be rained-upon their parade was).

American Biological Evolution

Before they are born, whilst in their mother's womb, instead of listening to her heartbeat and the bond they should have been forming with their mother (like all of us unborn children did in the past for millennium, for millions of years, within the close contact of our mothers) American (and not just American) children are now listening to the non stop bombardment of explosions, guns, demonic screaming of the actors, machine gun bullets etc. that the unborn child's mother is watching. That is the reality of even the unborn child in America. The real hell begins when the child is born.

It's just non-stop severely disturbing noise ... noise ... noise. Violence ... Violence ... Violence.

They hear the sounds their mother is watching and, shocking though it might well be, that noise becomes normal to them, before they are born. (Females, even when pregnant, are addicted to violent male criminals and that is passed to their children, born or unborn.)

In past historical times, pregnant women were not allowed to look at something ugly and certainly not to witness violent noise, shock or aggression. They listened to beautiful music or nature sounds in the forests and fields. Even in the distant past, they knew that what the mother experiences, the unborn child experiences also.

Joseph (John) Merrick (the Elephant Man) always maintained that his body was that way because his mother was frightened by an elephant when she was pregnant with him. (It was considered nonsense by the 'scientific community' until it was later discovered that a visiting circus including an elephant did indeed visit their town at that time and such an unnatural creature maybe did rear up in front of her and frighten her terribly.)

American children's brains grow in the constant noise of TV, movies and games. There is no quiet time for reflection and contemplation and problem solving because there is no money in quiet time for the scum who control their lives (Remember: there is no money to be made from non-violence because the people have been programmed to only love violence.)

((((((((((((((o))))))))))))))

Because of the incessant noise that children are forced to live with since they were born - their abused brains only programmed to constant noise and terror - huge changes will soon be necessary in American classrooms.

To remedy this mad situation, the only way to educate children will have to be ...

- ◆ Classrooms will soon be obliged to have recorded explosions, cars screeching and constant gunfire.
- ◆ The button to activate this noise will probably be located at the teachers desk and can be activated and de-activated by the teacher.
- ◆ So when exploring poetry or maths or just about anything really, the teacher has to activate the noise every 15 seconds or whatever the 'educators' deem appropriate.
- ◆ If any 'slack' teacher, driven by morality and care for his traumatized pupils, doesn't activate the noise within a 20 second period – it will activate automatically and the noise will last much longer and louder, to punish the recalcitrant teacher.

Aside

(When I was about 10 years old, in my tiny two-roomed school in the remotest part of Ireland, I had to learn to pronounce ALUMINIUM with all five syllables. All children will pronounce it Aluminum (4 syllables Al-um-min-um) but she kept me repeating it till I was able to say it in all 5 syllables (Al-um-in-e-um).

Many years later when I first visited America, I discovered that the adults there pronounced it with only four syllables – just like I did when I was 10 years old.) That’s when I realised that being rich had nothing to do with education. A good education was, if anything, a handicap. It was not what you said or behaved or how intelligent you were or anything else - it was just how you looked.

Another Aside

(Why isn’t there movies made about a wonderful primary school teacher like Caitlin Ni Cunnichain - or Miss Kathleen Cunningham as we knew her in the English language. I always felt sorry for anyone who didn’t have her as their primary school teacher. There would have been so many less prisoners and crime committed and ruined lives and many stupid people stimulated with shit culture and shit education if they had this wonderful Irish woman as their first teacher. OK, I know the answer to my rhetorical question. Movie production is only concerned by the illiterate scum that infest this lovely Earth - because that is what the people want to see. The last thing on the agenda is wonderful people like Caitlin Ni Cunnichain)

(((((((((((O)))))))))))))

Defending Education

When the Americans invaded Iraq, their army was immediately sent to ‘protect’ the oil reserves. Not one soldier was sent to protect the priceless artefacts in the museums, which were immediately looted.

But they did a lot of fine talk about defending the rights of women and children in the Islamic States they occupy. Essentially, the story they gave to the world is that they invaded so that Muslim children, especially female children, get a proper education.

Wow! This is really great. And here’s me thinking it was just war-mongering ASS fat cats who wanted to get fatter.

As everyone knows (with the possible exception of Americans and Brits), the civilization we know as European Civilization comes from Mesopotamia ... the place between the Two Rivers - the Tigris and Euphrates. In the Bible this place was called the Garden of Eden. In the modern world this place is called Iraq.

I’m sure the Americans, in keeping with what they say, and to prevent 70% of their children being brought up with zero education and abused in the most frightening way by the Anglo-Saxon Culture of Violence, will welcome Iraqi soldiers occupying the USA.

Iraqi educationalists can then implement regulations (hopefully free of Sharia Law etc.) that will allow children to be free from constant violence and given proper education in well run schools and can expect something more from life than to be an abused idiot, a prisoner or a prison guard.

Aside

The average American education level can best be illustrated by the lady who rented a hotel room facing the ocean in Florida and complained to the management that she couldn't see England. This is staggering on so many different levels. And it undoubtedly is clear evidence of the violation of basic human rights that is perpetrated on millions every day that a woman can reach maturity with such a diabolically low understanding of the world she is living in.

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

When I was a young student, I went to California with my girlfriend for a few Summer months to earn money for the next University year. In Lake Tahoe, we got a flat in a block of flats which was adequate for our needs at the time.

On the day we moved in, I was concerned that we do the right thing as we were now in America and they are even more friendly than we are and we should say Hello to our next door neighbour, no need to take a present or anything, and she agreed.

So we went to his door on our common balcony, knocked and a man emerged with a big smiling face that was clearly approachable and friendly.

Me : Hi. We're your next door neighbours. We've just moved in.

Him : (shaking hands all around) Right. Right. Nice to meet you. Where u guys from?

Me : Ireland.

I tried to explain that outside America there was an ocean on the west coast, the Atlantic Ocean - affectionately called The Pond - and on the other side of that ocean was Europe and that's where Ireland is - the first country you bumped against when sailing east to Europe ...

Ireland is radically popular in the USA or so I hitherto thought till I met this guy. England is probably more popular ... as this is the place where princes are slaying dragons and rescuing fair princesses and damsels in distress etc. This is where the original American retards came from. Clearly this guy belonged to the England camp.

We both knew where all the states of the USA are and he didn't even know where Ireland was. He thought Ireland was one of the United States of America.

((((((((((((((o))))))))))))))

Then we went looking for jobs. She instantly got a job as a hostess ... the lady who meets the people coming into the casino. It was the best job with the best tips. The only job offered to me was dishwasher - with the Mexicans.

NOTE

It must be said at this point that my girlfriend couldn't be more Irish looking. She had red copper hair that dominated her big blue eyes and fresh, almost transparent, skin that couldn't go near the sun. (My own sister looked like her and she uses an umbrella if the sun ever comes out - remember I'm talking about an Irish sun here so try and understand how easy they burn.)

All my eloquence, education and personality meant nothing in the USA. My black curly hair and easily tanned skin which was radically attractive in Ireland was a handicap more terrible than anyone who didn't experience it could possibly imagine.

MILITARY

Britain and America have a 'Special Relationship' because Britain has the lowest General Education in Europe and America has the lowest General Education in the world.

Bullies in a school-yard always find similar bullies and form a bond for their mutual support. Also, Britain and America have a signed 'Special Relationship' pact from the 1960s - exactly like the Non-Aggression pact between Nazi Germany and Soviet Russia.

- Britain will use their propaganda machine throughout the world to defend American mass murder and 'persuade' others to support it.
- And America will mass murder every nation who objects to Anglo-Saxon mass murder throughout the Earth.
- (Helluva 'Special Relationship' - and exactly like Manifest Destiny and Predestination of the Protestant mass murder throughout the Earth for so long.)

In case anyone doesn't already know, that is why England stopped it's nuclear bombs development way back in the day because the Americans had pledged to defend the UK as their own, thereby saving the Brits buckets of money and all they had to do in return was to continue with their centuries long propaganda machine.

Only this explains why someone 'previously deemed reputable' like Tony Blair stood shoulder to shoulder with a spectacular chimp like George Bush whose intellectual output could not compete with the average fart. Even a cow's fart could easily outwit him.

NOTE

(Tony Blair realised he had no choice because the British military had signed this pact long before his time. And so he had to agree with the chimp and had to invade Iraq because they had 'Weapons of Mass Destruction'. At that time, very normal person - including myself - after researching the facts realised that this was a complete fraud. Although I believe he was probably an honourable man deep down, Tony Blair never apologised to the Iraqi people for the mass murder of so many of their people and the subsequent mass murder in so many other countries - countries who have oil that the ASS really want to steal.)

American industrialists pushed Roosevelt into World War Two. War is great if you are an industrialist. They made trillions of dollars every week and they or their families do not have to fight and get blown to bits. That is for the children of the 'lower orders' of society and why the American ASS now have constant wars just like the British ASS before them.

Throughout history the only deterrent against war was that it depleted the resources of the country engaged in the war. It is the opposite now in modern America. The more wars you have, the richer you become. And so, the military trash who control modern America have established a never ending war - the War Against Terror. Wow! Cool, Eh!

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

Standard and Poor (S&P) have downgraded America's Credit Rating. I can only presume that the President of the USA is under constant pressure from the High Command of America's military to invade these two goddam commie countries and teach them a real good lesson.

Commander : We'll invade Standard first and then Poor. Don't want a war on two fronts. One of these goddam commie countries has gotta have OIL.

The President : Well, Standard definitely must have oil - Standard Oil - enough to tide us over for a while but Poor ... well we have no records for that place and ...

Commander : First you didn't know where this Ebola country was while they were infecting the shit outa us ... and now this. Well then, get to know where these critters are asap.

The President : Yes sir. As soon as I know, you will know.

Commander : And ... why are we putting up with this goddam Covid threat? Whadda fukk? Nobody, I mean, NOBODY, threatens the U S of A.

Let's invade this goddam Covid country and nuke them back to the Stone Age and show them what proud American boys are made of.

The President : I agree Sir and almost all of the Cabinet agree with you.

Commander : Where the Hell is it on the map?

The President : We can't find it, Sir. We've searched for days. Covid is simply not there.

Commander : Goddam shifty Covid commies. So, they removed it from all the maps. But that won't stop us. We'll make a map that shows us where it is and then we'll nuke them back to the Stone Age.

The President : Yes. You already said that Sir. But thanks for mentioning it again.

I'll get the nuclear weapons on stand-by and ready to strike.

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

After WW2 when Tito created the communist 'country' of Yugoslavia, he refused to join the Soviet Union which seriously pissed the hell outa Stalin who began a series of assassination attempts on Tito. After the 22nd attempt on his life, Tito sent Stalin a one line message ...

'If you don't stop sending killers, I'll send one to Moscow and I won't have to send another.'

Those wonderful men in their American military career had exactly the same plan as Stalin when confronted by Castro who wouldn't do what they were ordering him to do. They tried to kill him or to remove him from power 643 times. And failed miserably each time. (Not exactly renowned for their brilliant minds, those Anglo Saxon trash, eh?)

Castro sent a similar message to Kennedy along the lines of 'You tried many times and failed. If I try once, I won't fail'.

In all probability Kennedy knew very little about what was happening. It's well known that he was kept in the dark as much as they could manage to do.

Kennedy was killed shortly after that and the finger of blame was pointed at Castro, the Commies (for the Bay of Pigs invasion) and the Mafia (settling old scores with the Kennedys).

But every monkey swinging on a tree in Borneo knew it was the CIA and co. who did it.

So, The ideal of America is an ideal we all aspire to. An attack on America is an attack on our basically good, idealistic nature. But that basic nature is not Anglo Saxon. It is the basic nature of the countries that the subsequent immigrants came from.

And it seems inhuman to attack America. It's like killing Bambi or Santa Clause.

MOVIES

Martin Scorsese has been acclaimed, in America, as a 'great' director with many 'great' films to his name. Yet he has said publicly that his only reality comes from watching movies in cinemas. What ??

American movies do not deal with reality at all. They would be banned if they did. They are all made with a heavy bias, prejudice and propaganda agenda - and with never-ending extreme violence and brutal sexuality - otherwise they wouldn't get made.

So this is a guy who knows absolutely nothing about real life and is an expert in fantasy ... ideal candidate for making American movies. And that is fine if he sticks to fantasy movies - goblins and trolls, leprechauns and fairies etc. But he doesn't, does he?

He seems to see himself as a maker of movies that deal with gritty reality. Jesus! There's hardly any reality at all in his movies. He just regurgitates all he's ever seen in cinemas, cranks up the extreme violence and brutal sexuality and is a stranger to the real world.

(I love the book Popcorn, by Ben Elton, who describes how a mass murdering scumbag that was invented for American 'entertainment' becomes real and, inspired by the movies, breaks into the producer's house with the intention of killing him and the producer hides under the table and begs that he kills his wife and children - but not him. Classic expose of the American cowards who produce this American trash.)

For Example ...

Martin Scorsese made a movie called 'Gangs of New York'. The subject matter of this movie is not fantasy. It couldn't be farther away from fantasy - millions of miles from it. It deals with a time from the late 1840s while the Irish were being finally exterminated.

After hundreds of years of the most horrific atrocities perpetrated by the English - the worst in European history, as agreed by European historians - this was England's Final Solution in Ireland. The Irish, who had all their lands, schools, human rights etc. taken from them and were still clinging onto the little bit of life they had left, as slaves, were to be exterminated.

The Irish, who had kept European civilization alive during the many hundreds of years during the Dark Ages were being exterminated by the scum of Europe - the English. In their never-ending attempts to make Ireland into a British Isle for 800 years, they were exterminating the remaining Irish and exporting all the food produced in Ireland (at British gun-point) out of Ireland to feed the British army who were mass-murdering other cultured people throughout every continent on the Earth.

So, Martin Scorsese, that's why the Irish survivors were arriving in coffin ships into America. Surely a monkey can explain what was happening to you. Hello!

Aside

'Coffin Ships' was the term used to transport as many still living Irish people out of Ireland. Most died on the journey and were thrown overboard to feed the sharks - the rest died when they arrived on the St. Lawrence in Canada and on the many destinations in the USA, Australia, Britain etc. etc.

The important thing to understand is that Revisionist Historians (the ones who say that the Nazi Holocaust never happened) constantly try to undermine the extent of the massacre that happened.

They will say that anyone leaving Ireland did not die in Ireland, anyone dying on the coffin ships did not die in Ireland, anyone dying on the land the coffin ships arrived at did not die in Ireland. They will say anything to try and cover up the amount of cultured Irish people murdered by the English.

In 'Gangs of New York' movie there is not even the most miniscule mention of any of this. Amazing, not possible to understand but ... not a word. But how is this possible?

Well, Martin has seen so many American movies and, therefore, has been thoroughly informed that the absolutely delightful English people couldn't possibly behave like that. It's not possible to understand. (Poor silly Martin has only got his 'information' from propaganda movies - and too cowardly and inferior, to check it out and deal with the truth.)

And, as I'm sure you understand, the English wouldn't like it if that was mentioned in your movie, now, would they Martin? It would ... ahhh ... how do I say this in a sweet, politically correct way ... affect the success of the movie in England and her colonies in the Commonwealth ... you know ... the money generated would be less for the makers of the movie. Do you know what I'm saying? Yes, I know Martin everybody does! You pathetic coward!

(((((((((((O)))))))))))))

Word has it that Martin Scorsese is going to make a cool movie about a town in Southern Poland called Oswiecim (the Germans briefly called it Auschwitz during the early 1940s).

In this totally cool movie, another Martin Scorsese masterpiece, the strangest thing is happening. A truly illogical migration is taking place - unprecedented in European history.

Jewish people from all over Europe are arriving at this one little place. There must be something really goddam attractive there because they are coming in seriously overcrowded cattle wagons and nobody is leaving ... all the trains depart completely empty.

Apart from that, we don't know anything about this Scorsese masterpiece. Why the Jews are desperately arriving there is not at all clear. But we do see a band of marching monkeys, truly hilarious stuff, all cheerful and bright, playing brass instruments. And there are a few giraffes playing Frisbee with a flying saucer. Great stuff Martin!

Keep up the gritty American realism that you are renowned for. You're an American genius. Why mention Holocaust, Final Solution, Nazis or death camps. You'd only piss off a lot of Germans and it would definitely affect revenues there. You pathetic coward!

NOTE

Federico Fellini was considered another Italian genius because, in his movies, he had very blonde females with very Large Boobs. (Titanic Tits. Monster Gravity-Defying Hooters.)

Clearly, he was a genius. Who else could have imagined that except Fellini?

Folks. Trust me, all Italian men are similar geniuses. In every Nordic country I've lived in, Italian men are swarming around the available pretty blondes with ample bosoms.

And, I confess, like most men, I'm a bit of a genius myself - just like good old Federico Fellini.

Incidentally, even Martin is bound to have noticed that in real life there are many women over the age of 40. There they are, walking on every street, shopping in every supermarket, even elected as politicians. But in movie reality, women disappear off the face of the Earth by the time they have reached 40.

Hmmm ?? bit of a clue that something is amiss in your beloved movie reality, eh Martin?

I'm not beating on Martin Scorsese particularly. He comes from a whole plethora of suchlike idiots - infested with bias and overdosed with the worship of Satanic violence.

Let's hope (and pray) that these trash get their final comfort in Satan's undies when they eventually get their desecrated carcasses out of this beautiful Heavenly planet.

MINORITIES, PREJUDICES and BIASES

Why don't they make movies about the Anglo-Saxon slave ships that would throw the slaves overboard when they reached America, if the price of slaves wasn't high enough? Like all commodities, they didn't want to flood the market.

After unbelievable brutality at the hands of the Anglo-Saxons, being captured in Africa and in the hellish holds of the slave ship, they were finally taken out on deck and thrown to the sharks. Surely a movie like this should be compulsory viewing for all schoolchildren and would be some education for American kids, as they get absolutely no education at school.

And for the African Americans, they might at last see that a genuine attempt was being made to rectify the horrific imbalance that has been their experience in American. And tens of thousands of their sons and daughters will not resort to attacking people and society and spend their lives in prison. Real redemption will begin only when reality is presented on screens - and not some propaganda crap.

Remember ...

Americans can't read or write functionally any more. Their reality is what they see on screen - especially the tiny little screen they keep in their arse pocket aka their mobile phone. So, it is incumbent on their government that some form of education must be presented on a big screen for them. Otherwise their fundamental human rights are being violated.

- In their (very few) movies that deal with the thorny African slaves issue, the wise American film industry have cast the Spanish and the French as the bad boys – the slavers. So, can any American explain why the slaves in America all have Anglo-Saxon names? The ships who brought the slaves from Africa, the merchants who bought and sold them and the slave owners who removed all human dignity from them – were almost all Anglo-Saxon.

But this doesn't appear in any of their movies. Why is that ?

- Well, that was a rhetorical question - everyone knows why. The producers who make movies only do so to make a profit - it is not for some lofty altruistic reason like education the American morons. It is simply to make lots of money. And a movie that teaches their people would make a huge loss among the white population and the British Commonwealth throughout the world. And the non-black population continue to wonder why blacks are so violent towards them and white society in general and why blacks account for such a huge percentage of the prison population.

- Also the Native Americans of the USA (full blood and mixed) account for just over 3% of the population. South of the border, in Mexico, it is 60% of the population. But Americans are being told all the time about Cortes and the terrible conquistadors from Catholic Spain who exterminated the Natives. So, how could this be?
- The answer is that the native people in what's now the USA were practically exterminated by the Protestant Anglo-Saxons who still control the media and make sure that your attention is directed south to Mexico and South America and to these terrible Catholics from Spain – where the native population were not exterminated. (In keeping with Catholic ethos, they were integrated into society and in keeping with Protestant ethos in the USA and Canada - they were exterminated.)

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

Nine out of 10 German soldiers died fighting the Russians. While their 'allies' the Russians were winning the war, the Americans and British were hiding in England – in what surely is the worst example of cowardice in military history. After 3 years of hiding, (yes folks, not 3 weeks or 3 months. It was 3 years) waiting for the Germans to destroy communism, they re-entered the war to stop the Russians reaching the Atlantic.

It was a total shock to the Anglo-Saxon murder machine that the 'inevitable' German victory didn't happen and Russia won. They won the war. About 25 million Russians died doing it, but they won ... totally contrary to the Anglo-Saxon plans as it was also contrary to the German plans. They knew from Mein Kampf that Hitler had no intention of invading Britain and wanted a peace alliance with them – which they would surely have given if they knew the Russians would win the war.

Today American spokespeople continually refer to the Americans winning the war against the Nazis, without even a reference to the Russians who almost single-handedly won the war. These people, who would be considered quite mad in the Real World, are even being elected to political office by the American people. They are elected by people who totally believe what they're told in the movies and TV.

The power of advertising is beyond imagination in its absolute power. And the rulers of the Earth know the value of keeping their people totally stupid and given no education and a non-stop diet of junk food and extreme violence. They are the cannon fodder of their future wars to grab the world's resources and they must remain this way – even more stupid and violent than their parents.

That's why there are a thousand movies about how the Americans won the war against the Nazis. Truth is, they got their butt kicked in every war since that – hence the need to keep that WW2 myth going.

A large section of the American public 'know' that there was a military cover-up at Roswell. Tragically, if asked, the same Americans 'know' that it was the Americans who beat the Nazis in WW2. So intelligence can be very selective. People cherry-pick what they want to believe and what they don't. Or maybe it's just back to Education again.

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

The Beloved British Myth.

The absolutely marvellous cultured Brits – so beloved in all American movies is some kind of psychological symbol. An archetype of some sort. It is at the very centre of American mental stability (if such a thing exists).

To take this away from Americans would probably be a disaster of biblical proportions. A lot worse than telling a child with a machine gun that Santa Clause doesn't exist. Definitely, hundreds of thousands would be killed to preserve this great psychological heritage. It is questionable whether Americans would ever properly function mentally or physically again if this was taken away from them (though, arguably, nobody would notice).

When I twice visited America ... they always thought I was from England. I would - as politely as I possibly could - explain to them that I am cultured, civilized and educated so I couldn't possibly be English. Every dog pissing on a lamppost can explain what being English means - but it is very unlike what American movies and TV are telling them. 'Soccer Hooligans' is how all Europeans see them. (And that's the cultured Europeans - the coarse ones describe them in much harsher terms.)

While living for so long in Mainland Europe, this was a never-ending problem. When I was being treated with abject disdain and they then discovered I was Irish, they would always rise and shake my hand and say 'I'm sorry, I thought you were English'.

If the Americans are finally presented with the correct evidence and they know it's true, this knowledge would only be a superficial knowledge that would be easily dislodged by the time-honoured belief system. They would shoot the messengers, for sure. Their responses would reveal that, on a much more powerful emotional level, Santa Clause is still as real as ever and they will totally kill any goddam mudda-fukka who says it ain't true.

And because of the constant bombardment in the media, there is no questioning of this myth. I can hear the bright American thinking something like this ...

'OK. We all believe something there is no evidence for and all the evidence shows something that is completely different from what we believe. Why do we have it so completely wrong.'

And the myth remains unchallenged and goes from strength to strength in America. What is clearly needed is a few more brave people who will say aloud ...

'But ... the Emperor has no clothes.'

Where are these people? Why are they afraid to say something?

The British Movie Industry

The entire British movie industry is designed to make movies for the American market. There is no agency to tell the very uneducated Americans – 70% of them don't even own a passport – that the way the 'British' people speak and behave in the movies has absolutely no relationship with reality. They are not even shown videos and documentaries of the real situation.

There is no doubt, this is a violation of their human rights - just because they are stupid or are being deliberately being kept away from the truth (like their education system is designed to do) means that their basic human dignity is being taken away from them.

When in America, I became aware of this 'British Accent' phenomenon. I would speak in Scottish, Northern Irish, Yorkshire, Cockney, West Country etc. No matter which British accent I spoke in, they would shake their heads and say 'That's not it'. So, then I would speak in the accent of Oxbridge (the name given to Oxford and Cambridge universities) - the accent the BBC newsreaders and all actors have to learn to make a living.

'That's it, that's it' they would scream in delight. They had no idea it is a fake accent that nobody speaks in real life. But in their movie reality world - that is how British people speak.

Aside

When I was writing my movies, my English agent once was critical of a scene I wrote. He tried to explain to me that it wasn't real. I was stunned and frustrated because, not only was it very much the real world, but it did actually happen. Confusion reigned for a while before the solution to the conundrum dawned on him.

My Agent : You are talking about Real Reality and I am talking about Movie Reality.

He went on to explain to me that movies that are about the Real World either won't get made or crash at the box office. The paying public want Movie Reality - like children want Santa Clause - or they will hate it. That is why, in modern America, extreme violent pornographic movies, where everyone is shooting everyone else, the police never show up at all. There is no police at all. There is nothing real at all.

People, especially young men, should demand to be released from prison because this is the shit they were brought up with - movies that were made to make huge profits for the corrupt trash who produce and direct these movies. Surely there is a future coming when the trash who sow the wind will reap the whirlwind.

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

Whilst visiting North America once, I met a Swedish woman who was unhappy about her life there. I defended what America had to offer and asked her what she missed most - obviously thinking it was traditional cooking or crafts or the Northern Lights or walks on the shoreline or whatever.

It was movies. Jesus! Who would have thought. She loved European cinema and had to cope with the violent trash movies in America that a chicken or a pubescent boy could write.

When I probed, she wrote down 10 of the best European movies that I should watch.

Naturally, you had to read the text which meant it couldn't be shown in America - else the audience would take out their guns and start shooting the screen and probably start killing each other as well.

Whether they can read or not is not the point. Americans, like their Anglo-Saxon cousins in England refuse to accept the existence of any other language and will certainly reach for their gun if they are expected to read.

Back in Ireland, I found most of these European movies she had listed and - how right she was. They are classics.

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

When I first saw Quentin Tarrantino, he was being interviewed on TV. I thought it was a parody. Seriously. I'm not joking. I laughed along with the 'joke' until it began to slowly dawn on me that this 'clown' being interviewed was actually Quentin Tarrantino.

Surely there is something wrong with a country that allows someone like Quentin Tarrantino to make movies. Don't get me wrong. Freedom is great and nobody should be judged on looks or how irredeemably stupid they sound but, do me a favour, you wouldn't allow the mass-murdering escapee from the nearby lunatic asylum to babysit your child. Not even in America, come on?

Quentin doesn't have Adult Supervision and is not being watched by the police - he is a major Movie Producer. Jesus Christ. What's happening in America ???

My Two Cents

Quentin Tarantino just has to be President of the USA one day. Surely he is a dead cert for the job. He doesn't even have to canvass. Everything about that man screams brilliantly 'I am America' ... and why stop there?

Why don't Tarantino and Madonna declare themselves to be the new Royal Family of America. Then the USA wouldn't have to look at the never-ending soap about the Queen and her ever retarded family - called 'The Windsors'. And if Quentin was able to squirt one off in some low-life then he may be able to start a bastard Royal line, which is what the 'The Windsors' are. (An Australian sheep farmer is the true King of England but he isn't interested)

Moral of the story : These cowardly fucks needs to be given back the filth that they push. Give them the Hell they worship, take the money they have procured and give it to the victims of the violence they peddle.

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

- For so long in the American movie industry (and continuing to this day) women were presented as prostitutes, gangsters' molls or, in rare instance, school teachers. And women continued to pay money to see these movies. Where was the protest? Where is the protest today? The same women today believe the American mantra that they are invading Muslim countries to liberate Muslim women. Jesus, is their any end to their stupidity?
- The Americans are there to degrade women even further in porn. They have no interest in educating women - it doesn't sell.
- Adverts on TV at one time were on the same volume (decibel level) as the programme. Then they became much louder and are now at least twice as loud as the programme - with absolutely no protest whatsoever from viewers. If you don't dive to the remote control and reduce volume every time the very frequent ad breaks come, your sleeping child will be startled awake.
- How loud will the ads have to get before there are any protests? Some say it's because the ads contain Subliminal Messaging and there is a lot of evidence for that.
- I will go so far as to say that nobody is a serious contender in understanding the pervasive and insidious nature of media and propaganda without having read Victor Klemperer's diaries.

CELEBRITY

America is well described as a country ... seduced by fame, obsessed by crime and consumed by the media.

Celebrity is definitely the New Religion for this New Country called America. It is more powerful and pervasive than any previous religion because it is instantly available and recognisable throughout the world, thanks to modern technology. I'm not a big fan of any religion, present or past, but this one is definitely Satanic (for those of you who believe in Satan or do not believe in Satan).

It is a terrible indictment on modern society that we make celebrities out of people who are really below par so that we can laugh at them with the objective of making our own miserable lives more bearable. Generally speaking, they are borderline mentally unwell and so the tabloids constantly explore their lives and their privacy, just to get a few more belly laughs out of them. There is a very strong case for compensation for these people and I, for one, would support their claims.

The English royal family is the most obvious example of this. It's not their fault that they are a product of the selective breeding of neuron-challenged, upper-class twits. They were born like this, they didn't choose it. And then they must endure every aspect of their lives being trampled on and held up to ridicule, every day. It must be beyond bearable for them. I certainly would claim compensation if I were born into this unfortunate state of affairs. (Princess Diana - or Dianaar as the Brits say - like her fellow blue-bloods couldn't pass basic exams. This is terrible ... but real. They are irredeemably stupid because of in-breeding.)

The American pop star, Madonna, probably believed she was moving to a cultured country when she moved to England. I would gladly support her compensation claim against the horrific 'education' and 'information' system that conditioned her thinking. How was she to know that the reality she was given through movies etc. was just fantasy created for other people's profits. Like so many others, she was a victim of the never-ending propaganda machine that allowed her to think this way. And she also deserves to be compensated.

OK. Maybe she can be described as not the sharpest knife in the drawer and, arguably, should have known this. But just because a person is stupid, or brought up in a rarefied stupid environment, gives nobody the right to abuse their basic human rights. This is a principle everyone should be prepared to die for – or at least claim financial compensation for. (Go for it Madonna.)

These celebrities are being interviewed about really serious issues that affect the health, wealth and the well-being of society. Undoubtedly, the next interview about the meltdown of the banking system or global warming will be with Lady GaGa.

In America, this is not considered abnormal ... just like electing Donald Trump to act as a president is not considered abnormal either.

Aside

I once knew well a lady called Karen (not her real name) who had no Irish genetics. She was brought up in a very privileged, celebrity-enhanced family in California. Her rich father wanted to give her the best education and so sent her to Oxford or Cambridge (can't remember which) for her English Literature degree. Her father had no idea that that's where the posh inbred illiterates go - without a brain cell between them (such is the power of Brit propaganda).

In her first year, she was very unhappy. The English people she was stuck with were beyond imagination boring and stupid. She became aware of a group of people who were always laughing and sparkling with life. Finally, in the refectory, she asked her 'fiends'

She : Who are these people over there?

They : (disgusted) They're Irish.

Karen couldn't wait to talk with them ... they became friends and told her she would be much better off studying English in Dublin (they, themselves, had to stay there because of the particular degree they were doing).

Long story short : she moved to Dublin, fell in love with everything Irish, finished her Degree and became (and is still) a journalist with Ireland's best newspaper.

I have always believed that these celebrities / aristocracy who have way more millions of dollars than brain cells and, if you are more intelligent than them (which most people are, I imagine) then you have a right to take it from them.

It was their ancestors who took it from your ancestors - by force. And it is they who are daring you to do it so ... do it! ... If you dare! (But not by force - don't lower yourself to their level.)

CULTURE and NATIONALISM

- The guy who organises a break-in and stealing money with extreme violence and often killing other people, is referred to as the Mastermind of the crime by the media. (Jesus Christ, and all the other Gods and demi-Gods out there, why is this scumbag called a Mastermind? What message does it send to young up-coming scumbags? If he smashes that old lady's head in with a hammer and steals her welfare money - he too can be a Mastermind.)
- The guy who designs outrageous, dysfunctional clothing for starving models to parade on catwalks is referred to as a Genius. The starving models, who if they eat are sacked, are stumbling over their shoes and severely ill-fitting clothing and the designer of this disaster is called a Genius. What message does that send to all the self-conscious young girls and women who have the natural hips and bust curves of a female but want to look like Auschwitz survivor females on the catwalks. Anorexia and Bulimia and a host of other eating disorders are the result. (Male fashion designers are invariably homosexual and only thin, waif-like boy's shapes are attractive to them. Certainly not the voluptuous curves of a women. But this clear malfunction is perfectly acceptable and called Genius.)
- The people who accept these classifications of Genius and Mastermind, without shock or protest, are no doubt the same people who are terribly shocked at how awful modern society has become.

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

Culture is incredibly difficult to achieve and even more difficult to maintain and can be lost as easily as a girl blowing on a dandelion saying 'He loves me, He loves me not'.

Culture is like a Cross to bear and this heavy Cross has to be carried on your shoulders all your life. It's so much easier to just cast it off and join the morons - the overwhelming majority - but you can't ... because you are cultured. But culture can be detrimental to your health. It may even be the cause of your death.

Nationalism is closely related to the Culture of the nation but it can be a divisive thing and downright ugly at times. Even cultured Europeans can be horrible to each other.

Communism realised this and tried to remove Nationalism but, within a generation or two, it appeared again as strong as before because it was not something that Marxist ideology could explain - just like it couldn't explain Ghosts that people regularly witness.

Rossislav

- Rossislav (Ross) was an 'old man' I got to know in Australia who was sweeping the corridors of a hospital for the past 25 years.
- He had been born into a privileged (rich) Russian family, who were able to sell their estates and move to China just before the 1917 Revolution.
- When China then had it's own Revolution in 1948, he joined the Chinese Communist Party at 16 years of age to the understandable horror of his parents
- And he witnessed his parent's estates being taken from them and given to the new Communist State without any emotion from Ross.
- And he never wanted to see his parents again (and he didn't) because they belonged to the decadent past which he was indoctrinated to despise.

He rose quickly through the Communist ranks and became the man responsible for an entire region ('canton'?) which contained about 6 million people. (He was effectively the ruler of a country.)

- Then one of the factories, that he was responsible for, developed a problem
- The senior factory manager kept ringing him explaining nervously that, when the factory is closed at night, the machines all switch on by themselves and begin working again
- Ross had told him to find an explanation for this – surely someone must be breaking in or there is a problem with the electrics or something
- But he was assured that they had tried all that and couldn't find an answer
- Ross had no choice but to go and investigate for himself

Nobody who experienced it could forget his dramatic, broken-English description of waiting silently outside the factory that night and the factory managers accompanying him with switched-off torches in hand.

Unbelievably, he heard a machine switch on by itself. He and the other guys entered the factory and witnessed the machine running by itself. To his amazement, one machine after another switched on and began running although the factory was empty with no product on the conveyor belts etc.

Ross switched on all the lights and witnessed this phenomenon. Slowly, one after another, all the machines switched off and the factory was silent again.

As a committed Communist all his life, Ross tried to retain his authority but he had no answer to the bewildered managers who needed an explanation.

- He went home and began to study local maps and history
- And he discovered that the factory was built on top of a cemetery (Communism didn't believe in wasting precious space on the dead)
- The authorities had simply removed the headstones and built on top of the buried bodies
- Then he studied all the Communist literature – Marx, Engels etc. trying to find some explanation. But there was nothing about ghosts or the afterlife
- Very unwillingly, he had to accept that all he believed throughout his life didn't have an answer for what he had just witnessed
- So, leaving everything behind, he escaped China without telling anyone
- At 40 years of age with just 18 shillings in his pocket and no English language whatsoever, he arrived in Sydney

Aside

I totally admired him. Someone who had so much by birth but gave it away because of ideology. Someone who achieved so much by his own efforts and intelligence, but gave it away to remain true to his own conscience and respect for the truth. Someone who went from the very top to the very bottom – he didn't even have the respect of the Australian (illiterate blonde) people he worked with who saw him as an eccentric old fart.

He liked me because I was the only person he could speak to about anything – history being the main theme of our debates.

Once we were sitting with six Russian Jewish women at a large table in the cafeteria. A discussion began about the war and I nonchalantly said ...

Me : The only thing I can say for sure is that Stalin was a bastard.

Believing everyone would agree with that, I couldn't have been more wrong. The six women lowered their heads without making a sound. Ross, head erect as always, was staring into my face showing nothing but disdain for what I had said. Slowly he extended his finger towards my face ...

Ross : You were not alive during the war, boy!

The old warrior was the man he always was and it shocked me how much he still loved his Mother Russia and its leader Stalin who beat the Nazis – while the American and British cowards remained hiding in England.

End of Extract

But the truth is, people like me would prefer to die in Europe than live in America. Everyone's culture and nationalism - no matter how different - I love it all.

Latvia

If the Irish didn't invent the supernatural – then they should have

There is no nation on Earth that can claim such a huge preponderance of supernatural stuff than Ireland. (While living in Latvia, a lady who owned a book shop translated for me the title page of their most famous fairy story book. It was 'We Latvians are second only to the Irish in producing the greatest fairy stories of the world'.)

I had lived in Norway for two years and became aware of their Trolls and Elves. It's the same in Sweden and so Latvia is influenced by this - but they also have their own unique ones. For such a tiny nation, they produced so much in folklore (second to Ireland, of course).

Disco music is so abhorrent to me that I would surely die (or someone else would in my vicinity) if I was in the same room as it for over 10 minutes. Riga discos are full of really pretty girls and also full of Italian (and other southern European) men looking for a blonde wife while the Swedish and Finnish men, are looking for cheap booze and cheap prostitutes which they find copious amounts of.

Big extract from my Norn Iron section

I am a Nationalist person and respect Nationalism in every country wherever I go. In Riga, Latvia, the only non-disco place to go at the weekend was a Nationalist place. It was called Četri Balti Krekli which means Four White Shirts (Gulp!)

I went there at least once every weekend for the 18 months I lived there.

They could tell by looking at me that I wasn't Latvian and sometimes I'd get an elbow in the ribs when I was chatting up a girl (a pretty girl, mind you – no elbows at all if she was ugly).

But I didn't care. They were invariably red-necks from the countryside who disliked everyone who wasn't Latvian – especially Russians. Once, there was a queue at the door because the security men were 'searching' two women very roughly (it should have been women doing this). They pointed to the door and the women left. I asked the people in the queue with me 'What happened ... was it drugs'. They looked me up and down like I was a moron and said 'They were Russian'.

To non-Latvians, everyone up there looks very similar – tall, white and invariably blonde – though I noticed after a while living there that the Lats had longer thinner faces and the Russians had shorter broader faces. But I also noticed there was no bad blood between them, with the possible exception of Četri Balti Krekli.

Latvia is very similar to the situation in Norm Iron. Half of the population are Lats and the other half are Russians who have moved in, so the Lats have a right to their nationalism ... and their culture is so unique.

One of my private students was a 30 year old Russian guy. He told me he speaks Russian with his wife but speaks Latvian to their children. (You can't get better than that as a former occupying power. Are you listening Brits.)

In another class, I had a bunch of young Latvian men who I believed would be too inexperienced to avoid unearthing any hatred for the Russians. (Nota Bene : at one point of their history, the Lats were less than 100,000 people. But they rallied and are now back to nearly 2,000,000)

Me : 'Did you know that the Jews of this city Riga were all murdered before the Germans arrived. It was not the Germans who killed them. It was your people. They did this to show their loyalty to the new German regime and their opposition to Russian rule.'

Waiting to be ripped limb from limb ... nothing happened. Out of the eerie silence, one guy asked me did I know where the killings happened and when I didn't, offered to show me the following Sunday which I accepted.

When we got into that place the following Sunday, it was a normal woodland setting and when I asked him where the graves (pits) were he said 'Everywhere'.

I stopped and said a prayer and asked for peace of mind for any of the murdered Jews who were still unable to leave and find forgiveness for their Latvian murderers who did not know what they were doing'. He was shocked at my behaviour because they didn't have any religion there.

Latvian songs are wonderful. Maybe not up there with classic Irish ones, but still really great. And I can still hum these tunes today.

One song was epic. There is no way even a foreigner or a robot or an extra-terrestrial could stay sitting or standing when that one was played.

The opening bars were like a massive trumpet fanfare, a rallying call to all Latvians. Even I, who normally wouldn't dance without a gun being pointed to my head, would jump up and invade the dance area with all the other Latvians, whether I was with a dance partner or not.

There was a point in the chorus when all the men would punch the air with closed fists, shortly followed by a double closed fist punch of the air – in perfect synchronicity. I quickly learned how to do this because I was terrified in case I got it wrong. Clearly it was extremely important to them. Maybe the song was saying 'Let's kill all Irishmen' but I didn't care. The song was too good not to be involved in it.

A girl once told me what it was about. It was simply a Harvest Song. This made it all the greater. It wasn't a Nationalist song like ... lets kill all the Estonians, Lithuanians, Russians, or Swedish who periodically invaded them.

It was just a song telling all Latvians that the harvest is upon us. We don't know how long the warmth will last and, before the snow arrives again, we all have to get our harvest into our barns and make sure that everyone else gets their harvest in. (So, even if I was an Irishman and was busy writing songs or poetry or whatever, the people would all make sure that my harvest was got in as well – because they were my neighbours.)

That girl was special to me and couldn't believe when I was morally obliged to choose my former Czech girlfriend who had arrived in Riga (Imagine that I still didn't realise that Czechs have no morality at all. It's just stealing money and cheating and non-stop lying that is their National Morality).

Anyway, that lovely Latvian girl went to Canada and met a guy there. She comes to Riga every year to celebrate Latvian culture dressed in her National Costume. After my terrible mistake, she wouldn't accept me back – and I couldn't blame her.

End of Big Extract

*The following is another two-page extract from my
'THE OCCULT' section.*

Anyway, after many years of searching for a European city free from English 'tourists', I eventually found a nice city with no Direct Flights from Britain. Riga is the Latvian capital and it was lovely – cultured people, incredibly pretty girls, good night life etc.

After a blissful six months living there, the terrible news came. The authorities had opened two direct flights from Britain every weekend. (Realise this ... about 30 people (Communists) who owned the clubs, pubs and hotels wanted to cash in on the English scum and the rest of the city would have to endure this onslaught.)

I was desperately telling everyone that they must lie on the airport runways and not let these planes land. Clearly, they thought I was mad. All the movies showed that these English people were terribly civilized and as nice as could be expected. (They still had no idea that the movies they were watching was the usual English propaganda.)

- ◆ I didn't go out socializing that long, lonely summer, knowing what I'd encounter. Finally, I ventured out in October and met again the people I had known.
- ◆ They were shocked, staring wide-eyed at me for some explanation, not able to comprehend what they had experienced.
- ◆ The English had taken over their little city (like I told them), they were pissing on their national statues and monuments (like I told them), they were smashing up their restaurants and wrecking the furniture (like I told them) and they were beating up prostitutes (clearly the girls had discovered their tiny English cocks.)

Me : If they came here to Riga, you were dealing with the 'educated' English. Try to understand what the low-life English are like. I realise this is not possible for cultured people like you. But, in Communism, you couldn't travel to see this for yourselves. The Americans don't have passports. That's how English propaganda movies function. The Earth is only now witnessing the real English.

The Lats : Why are they like this ? What's wrong with them ? It makes no sense.

Me : They are English. That is what they are. There is no cause or cure

Try to understand this. There is no 'reason' for them being this way and no cure for it.

They first began mass-murdering the Irish and then all over the Earth for 800 years. So you are very lucky you have got a taste of this shit before you swallowed it.

The Lats : But we were nice to them and ... made them welcome and ...

Me : Terrible mistake. All cultured people throughout the world did this also. The English mass-murdered them, stole whatever they had and occupied their countries. After their success in Ireland at exterminating the Irish, they did this all throughout North America ... Africa ... Asia ... Australasia and beyond.

The Lats : So ... what do we do now ?

Me : Like I told you many times before, about 50 of you must lie on the airport runways to prevent the planes from England landing. I'll be there if you need me. The few people who will get rich from these visiting trash invariably control the government and the military and may well get your people arrested. So be it. Another 50 of you will take their place, including me if you wish. Eventually, the English will find a more corrupt country with more 'accommodating' people and go there. That is their disgusting history for the past 700 years throughout the Earth.

Tragically, this never happened. Those good Latvian people, brought up under Communism, couldn't bring themselves to challenge the prevailing authority. The money lobby, who make big money from the visiting English scum, live in security protected mansions away from the city and are able to prevent the people who own the country protecting themselves or their own county.

My Two Cents

- 🌐 Folks! Listen up! Get your cities and your countries back. You are the Voice. You are the People. You are the Power.
- 🌐 Find whatever it takes to neutralize the local scum who degrade your lives and your country for their own personal profit.
- 🌐 A minimum should be something an Englishman (who was cultured and had left England) once told me and I agree ...

... Before they leave their airport in the UK, it has to be explained to them that when they leave England they will be entering a cultured country and they must observe and imitate the behaviour of the people there – otherwise they will be banned from flying again.

VIOLENCE and PRISONS

When the immigrants arrived in America, they almost all left countries where learning and education was respected. The minute they arrived in America they realised that their gentle culture got them nowhere - but violence got them respected and admired. They had no choice but to blend into their environment - like in all of biological evolution. They became English, they became Anglo-Saxons overnight.

And now, in our more enlightened age, it is still the Anglo God of Violence that is respected, venerated and worshipped.

Americans worship violence, like their English cousins. It's not something distasteful and abhorrent as cultured people would view it. It's totally cool. They force their children to worship violence and be good Americans like themselves.

For Example ...

To show a woman's breast is considered offensive and to show gratuitous violence is not frowned on at all. For some reason, to the Calvinists who entered North America and slaughtered the cultured people there, that part of a woman's body this is used to keep a new-born baby alive is deemed to be disgusting and the heavily armed thug who enters another country and kills everyone there is considered a hero.

America. You need to get your shit sorted out fast. The brave new world that is emerging won't tolerate it any longer. The only solution for you is to exterminate the brave new world. And you are not going to win that one - you're just postponing the inevitable.

But why is it like this? Something that is so obviously wrong is considered not just acceptable but definitely to be admired and loved. There has to be a method to this madness or, at least, a reason for this madness. Allow me to venture an explanation.

In America, because of the violent society they were brought up in, there are more people in jail than anywhere else.

The only reason that makes sense is the Human Guinea Pig factor. Just like their mentors the Brits discovered many years ago, in order to colonise a new land, large amounts of prisoners are needed to go there first.

In 18th and 19th Century Britain, there were so many laws that practically everyone was a criminal - except the scum who made the laws, of course. (Even little starving children were hanged for stealing a piece of bread.) Then suddenly, the English mass murder machine needed many human guinea pigs to be sent to the new 'conquered' land called Australia - and they got it.

(The Irish rebels who were trying to get civilization re-established in Ireland, were sent as convicts also. So it wasn't just British people who were sent there.)

- Modern American controllers of society wisely realised they don't have to make a thousand new criminal laws. They have TV and Movies.
- They can simply create a new generation of criminals by constantly bombarding men, women and especially children with extreme violence.
- New laws didn't have to be made but millions of new criminals are created. I believe that they are the New Australians, needed for experiments in crowd control.
- Don't be surprised when, in the maybe not so distant future, a constant stream of American prisoners (that were deliberately created) will be sent to live in bubbles that were erected for them in distant planets, thus becoming the 'heroes' that future generations will have no choice but to celebrate them as space pioneers.

Aside

I believe all American prisoners have a right to be released because they were brought up on a never-ending soup of violence and then they were sent to prison for being violent. Can you imagine that for mind-bending hypocrisy?

Even before they were born, their mothers were watching non-stop violence on TV. Never ending noise and explosions, guns and bombs.

Naturally, upon the prisoners release, there may be mayhem for a while but this will subside at the same rate as the sickness in society subsides.

Because, as part of this general release of violent offenders from prison, porn and violent movies in cinema and on TV will be outlawed. The producers, directors, actors and purveyors of this filth will wish they were never born as they begin their lengthy prison sentences should they attempt to make underground violent and porn movies.

If society is to survive and endure ... this shit has to be ended.

- ▶ American prisons are getting more crowded every day and the regime more brutal.
- ▶ This can't be helped because the violence and drugs are run by society.
- ▶ There's too much money to be made from it.
- ▶ Prisons should be run by cultured people who receive these human wrecks from a wrecked society and introduce them to a little bit of civilization.
- ▶ Dogs and other animals – held in inhuman compounds – given to prisoners as companions to bond with.
- ▶ Prisons should be havens of culture and learning – rather than Universities of Crime.

MODERN HISTORY

- ❏ The Americans and Brits eventually got involved in WW2 to stop the Russians reaching the Atlantic Ocean. They were totally stunned (as were the Germans) when their 'allies' - the Russians - won the war. The Americans and Brits hated Communism and were content to allow the Germans wipe it out.
- ❏ In the most cowardly act in military history, they hid in England for three years waiting for the 'inevitable' German victory. They knew from Mein Kampf that Hitler had no intention of invading Britain and wanted a peace alliance with them – which they would surely have given.
- ❏ When the Taliban originally took control in Afghanistan, they immediately eradicated the heroin producing poppies. The price of heroin was about to hit the roof in American cities which would result in massive revolt in the streets and especially hit the pockets of the politicians, administration and police officials who make huge amounts of money from the heroin trade.
- ❏ When the inevitable American military invasion happened, they made sure that poppy cultivation was re-established even greater than before. The propaganda machine now 'informs' their readers that the Taliban are making money from the heroin trade. Those pesky Taliban are almost as bad as the pesky Native Americans before they were exterminated.
- ❏ America has Israel bristling with nuclear weapons, the vast majority aimed at Iran, and America is wailing continuously about the horrors of the possibility of Iran getting nuclear weapons. And this is accepted by American allies in Europe and throughout the world. What they are saying is that Iran or Iraq, or whoever else is on their ever-growing hit list, do not have the right to protect themselves against a nuclear attack from American or Israeli or whoever.
- ❏ Why are people forgetting that it was America who mas-murdered the civilians of Nagasaki and Hiroshima using nuclear weapons. No other country did something as heinous as that - certainly not Russia, Iran, Iraq or all the others on America's hit list.
- ❏ A small rocket, fired from Gaza, hits a rubbish bin in Israel. Nobody is hurt. Israel murders 2,000 civilians in Gaza in retaliation. The treatment of the Palestinians by the Israelis and their huge Anglo Saxon military mass murder support is exactly the same as the Nazi treatment of the Jews.

- Retaliation is understandable and necessary according to Israel and America. Even 'intelligent' Americans like Bill Maher thinks this is totally justified. The exact same people condemn the Nazi policy of killing 10 or 100 civilians for every German (heavily armed soldier occupying their country) killed. Israel's policy in their occupation of Palestine is a lot worse than that – but it is absolutely acceptable and encouraged - by seemingly 'normal' people.

Aside

Why do rioters - even in Ireland - always attack rubbish bins. They kick and smash rubbish bins on the street with terrible venom. Clearly rubbish bins are some sacred and highly venerated object that I am completely unaware of. Somebody please tell me. Nobody tells me anything.

So that explains, certainly to the ASS, why it is completely understandable and acceptable that 2,000 innocent Palestinian civilians should be murdered by the Israeli army because one of them damaged a rubbish bin in Israel.

- For as long as the Anglo-Saxon thug and his Israeli supporters treat the Muslim people as Untermenschen, they will have terror and, hopefully, enough of this terror till they show some respect to fellow human beings and end their disgusting carnage.

SPORT and ENTERTAINMENT

Snooker : It is a fair thing to say that snooker is a game definitely not designed for Americans. Pool is a much more suitable game. A chimpanzee can understand the rules and the aforementioned chimpanzee can also play it. To customize snooker for America, I fear may be impossible and there would have to be major changes made to this silent game ...

- People walking about and loudly selling beer and hotdogs / hamburgers etc. at all times.
- Cheerleaders, scantily clad and dancing around the table, chanting and blowing bubble gum.
- Chanting by the supporters of each player each time he pots a ball and the booing of the opposition fans if he misses.
- Mexican waves among the supporters when a player's break reaches 50 and continues till the end of the break.
- Throwing empty (or full) beer cans at the players but the referee would have to be allowed to express disappointment at such behaviour.
- Players would be allowed to throw the snooker balls at particularly loud hecklers in the audience (or the guy who threw the beer can at him).

If these amendments to the traditional snooker game was not allowed, many of the American audience pumped up on caffeine, alcohol, heroin, cocaine, crack, meth or various other more destructive drugs would simply take their guns out and start shooting. The referee and players would be the obvious first targets followed by their fellow audience members and eventually suicide.

If Americans were forced to watch snooker (especially the really boring players) and not be allowed to take coffee or any other drug, the rage in them would subside and they would need less and less medication. Many of society's problems would be solved overnight.

Another interesting feature of snooker is the sheer sadistic nature of it. They seem to insist on showing a game where one guy hasn't a snowball's chance in Hell of winning. And from one painstaking hour to another we are forced to watch a really slow death taking place. No wonder neither masochists nor sadists watch it. It's just too brutal for both.

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

Soccer : Although Soccer is gaining favour in America, I understand American's disdain for it. It's just too goddam boring and consider yourself lucky if there's one goal in the entire game. It really is a waste of your precious time on Earth.

When Homer Simpson had to watch a game on TV, the midfielders passed the ball to each other, then back to the defenders who passed it to each other before passing it back to the goalkeeper. Homer said 'What the Hell's going on here?' and who can blame him. Clearly the ball should be going forward - not back.

Check out my website's 'Soccer' section where I propose changes to this 'beautiful' game including :

- ◆ Goal-keepers having to wear full length dresses to the ground to prevent the ball going between their legs ala Huckleberry Finn. It may well cause damage when it impacts between his legs - but he prevented a goal ... as is his job.
- ◆ Painting the grass white so the Irish team - who insist on wearing green - can actually see each other when they are playing on a green field.
- ◆ Getting rid of the off-side rule and/or reducing the size of the pitch and/or widening the size of the goal posts. The objective is More Goals so everything is considered.

Homer Simpson may not be aware (clearly not) that soccer is like Chess on a field. Position and strategy and bluff and the skills involved to control the ball.

Personally, I was never good on a field, but I was good indoors. Indoor soccer is like basketball - but faster. (My claim to fame is that I once played against the professional Irish Women's team in the semi-final of a tournament and I scored four goals and beat them easily.)

Chess : How could I possibly have believed that Chess is played in America. All the masters are stoney-faced Eastern Europeans - especially Russians who eat brain food like shellfish and all other fish and healthy food, who practice meditation and breathing and self control. Therefore, the game and all that it entails to be successful is so absolutely non-American where the players would have to be provided with a barrel full McDonalds delicacies to sustain them throughout the match.

Many years ago, whilst island-hopping on the Greek Islands when I was about 20, I was stood at a bus stop on some remote island and the bus was inevitably late - really inevitably late. To pass the time, an American guy there with long hair and beard (young men all looked like Jesus Christ back then) asked me did I play Chess. When I tentatively said Yes, he produced a magnetic chess board with all the pieces from his rucksack and set them up.

He Check-Mated me in four moves.

Very dumbfounded and stammering that I wasn't concentrating because of the heat, he set them up again.

He Check-Mated me in six moves.

Despite my best efforts, I couldn't stop him. He then relieved my angst and confessed that he was a Chess teacher in America - his parents being clearly non Anglo-Saxons.

So, you have talent there America and maybe one day even beat the Russians in Chess. But you'll never beat them in a fair fight ... or even in an unfair fight like soccer.

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

The standard of TV shows is becoming truly astonishing. The dumbing down phenomenon throughout the world is well known and experienced by all but in America it is breathtaking. Surely there must be a clause in all adverts looking for TV show submissions that '...only total morons need apply.' No doubt the guy on American Chopper (or one of his sons) will be the future President of the United States with university courses on quotes from this immortal bard.

Half of all nature documentaries on TV are about sharks or lions. Strange when you think of the many millions of other species on the Earth. And about half of all movies made are about extreme gratuitous violence. The need to show non-stop violence is overwhelming and continuing to grow.

(80% of Brits who can read - read Scum Newspapers, Shows-Yer-Tits newspapers. People who would previously be removed from a civilized society and sent to prison are now presenting shows on Television.

I have invented a brilliant scumbag baby-throwing game for TV that will be a monster hit. Maybe Americans are still not ready for this game - another few years down the road, I wager.

AND ... BE WARNED. IT IS MY GAME THAT I INVENTED AND OWN. IF YOU USE IT WITHOUT MY PERMISSION, YOU WILL PAY ME A LOT OF MONEY OR YOUR ASS WILL FRY IN HELL.

***** check out my website for my baby-throwing game *****

EXTRA-TERRESTRIALS

UFOs have attacked American military installations in America – especially any base that houses nuclear weapons. They have neutralised nuclear weapons on the ground and in flight. They have attacked American mass-murderers in every war they engaged in e.g. Korea, Vietnam, Iraq, Afghanistan and in all the clandestine wars they are engaged in.

They began doing this after the Americans destroyed two Japanese cities in 1945 and they realised that this technology in the hands of cretins could wipe out the entire Earth.

They regularly neutralise American nuclear bases (which American media keep well away from the people who believe what they see on the News) to let the military maggots who think they rule the world that they are many millions of miles away from that. But the lovely truth is that America will not end the Earth – no matter how much they want.

It would be lovely to think that the UFOs are like all us cultured people and want to stop the Anglo warmongers who are hell-bent on destroying the world.

But this may, tragically, not be true. It sometimes appears there may be no altruistic reason why they are doing this. It is probably a simple and very selfish reason. They want this Earth for themselves and they don't want scum like the Anglo-Saxons destroying 'their' world.

They are like an invasive species - like typical English tourists pissing in the holy water font in the Sistine Chapel. They won't allow it.

But, tragically, maybe it's not because they love the Sistine Chapel and all the wealth of human civilization it represents. It could simply mean – they want the Sistine Chapel and all of the Earth's greatness for themselves ... for their own non-human purposes.

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

Jesus. That explains why Americans are being routinely abducted by aliens and experimented on. Just like Earth scientists do to 'lesser' creatures like frogs and monkeys.

Angry Realist

Yes. The Anglo-Saxons may be beyond imagination stupid but they should not be treated like some inferior life form to be abducted and experimented on at will. Anyway, it's a moral question and clearly not a scientific one. Is there anyone out there who can definitely answer this question?

Trendy Non-Realist

If we finally meet an ET or any non-Earthly life forms and they are completely convinced that Jesus / Mahommed / Buddha / and that Seven Headed Frog in that unpronounceable Amazon Jungle village are very real. Well, that's all we need, isn't it? Hello!

((((((((((((((O))))))))))))))

The only hope for Planet Earth are the Extraterrestrials. They have, many times, stopped Americans deploying their nuclear weapons or have disengaged them while on the ground. The ETs are clearly saying ...

ETs : You are too retarded to use this advanced stuff for murder. This is not your planet and, therefore, it is not your planet to destroy.

Naturally, the Americans are not getting any of this information. They are too busy getting turned on watching non-stop brutal murder on their TVs.

I understand that there are the Watchers - monitoring the Earth. And they will not allow this lovely Earth to be destroyed by the Anglo-Saxons.

At this point, I don't know why they are protecting the Earth. To me it is something like ... we are their children and they (like all good parents) are protecting us.

Final Question...

Why would Oppenheimer and his guys give the Nuclear bomb to the Americans? Hello! Watch the film Dr. Strangelove.

America is run by the most illiterate Anglo-Saxon idiots this lovely Earth could possibly imagine. Yet, somehow, these intelligent Europeans gave this technology to the shit of the Universe. Yes, Oppenheimer and his advanced people later regretted giving this technology to them - but it was too late.

The Soviets had to defend themselves against this American nightmare. And so the madness began ... MAD (Mutually Assured Destruction)

There's a special place in Hell set aside for Oppenheimer. I don't care how much he regretted it, he had lots of time to think about what he was doing - but went ahead with it anyway - because the money was too good, I imagine. May he rest in eternal torment.

((((((((((((((o))))))))))))))

I don't own a car or cause global warming in any way (other than maybe farting) but I will die just as surely as every car owner if this present craziness is allowed to continue.

The countless millions of car owners seem to have no problem with letting their engine burn oil and belch the poisonous shit out of the exhaust and into the atmosphere and air that we all need to breathe.

Why is this acceptable ?

When I was young and all the other young guys were in love with cars and were perplexed at my disinterest, I would say ...

When they invent a car with anti-gravity and zero pollutant propulsion - I will get a car.

I still feel the same today. Even young schoolchildren today are aware of the horrors in store for this Earth that we are all living on - if something is not done about about pollution.

There is no Planet B - there is only Planet A.

There is only one Earth and we are all living on it.

Hello!

OBSERVATIONS ...

But the greatest man in our modern world is an American.

Homer Simpson is the greatest. No matter how many great men there are out there scattered throughout the Earth - be in no doubt, he's The One.

Homer has given something to the world that no other American did. He gave all of us some of our former respect for America back to us. Because of him – we like America and don't want to lose this. And he made us all realise that we are just like Homer Simpson Americans - deep down.

The writers (original writers) of The Simpsons cannot be honoured (or paid) enough. They should be National Treasures and venerated as such.

In many ways Homer Simpson means the same to many of us now as the Founding Fathers meant to my ancestors and countless millions of quality people trapped in hopeless situations. (But, of course, I do realise how very sad that actually is.)

Throughout the centuries, everyone escaping the terrors of Europe found a refuge, of sorts, there. My own Irish people escaping the mass murder by the English being the most obvious. Although brutalised beyond imagination for hundreds of years, they experienced the same Anti-Catholic, Anti-Irish nightmare in America which was still a part of the English propaganda machine and were treated worse than slaves.

But, finally, America was a refuge to us and to so many other brutalised people. And we are all Americans now.

- ◆ About 5% of the population will have the strength to reject what they previously know, and suffer ridicule from everyone else, when they reach a higher knowledge.
- ◆ The other 95% will revel in hearing what they want to hear because that's where the power and glory of this Earth resides.
- ◆ These are the people who will gladly take a thousand lives and even give up their own lives rather than give up the fantasy they live with.

I constantly marvel at the constant references and 'jokes' about the French by the ASS (The Anglo Saxon Scum). They are presented as cowards in World War 2. Amazing! (At that time, German military communication was only worried about the French, not the Brits.) So, when presented with the juggernaut of German blitzkrieg, they had to give up to preserve their cities and their country – like everyone else - while the English, having been beaten in six weeks just like the French, scurried back to England, leaving all their equipment behind, and told their propaganda machine that they were not beaten. It was a 'glorious retreat'. Hilarious.

The French had fought much better than the Brits but they had no island to escape to so they surrendered - just like the Norwegians, Danes, Dutch and Belgians.

Later, when the Americans hid in England with their fellow Anglo-Saxon cowards – this was the cowardice they were desperately trying to cover up, by deflecting it onto the French.

Given their history, when I lived in England I always marvelled at how relatively non-racist they were however much I realised the huge payback they owed to the immigrants. Even if they are not being reminded of it as often as they should, they still must realise it subconsciously. The debt they owe for hundreds of years of mass murder is enormous.

The Americans didn't have a big Imperialist legacy until WW2. When, just like their ASS cousins in England a long time before, they realised the huge amounts of money to be had from invading other countries, then the massive American Imperialism began. And it has, so far, been horrific in human history.

When the internet was invented I rejoiced because it has access to real information. This is true and I use it constantly to investigate the real story. (In any investigation, I begin with Wikipedia first - which I pay for every month - before moving deeper.)

I believed, at last, the internet would end the lies and misinformation that was being peddled by the controllers of the media. But it was not the end. Their reaction was to bombard the internet with even more ridiculous rubbish so as to keep the majority of the people bombarded with crap and disinterested in investigating what they are told.

The entire British documentary and film industry is geared to making movies for export to America. But the actors must first learn to speak with the British accent. Nobody actually speaks with this accent in England and especially Britain.

When I hear Americans using the term British accent, I would then speak with a variety of British accents from Scotland down to Cornwall. Americans don't recognise any of them. I do the Oxbridge accent and they immediately recognise this as the British accent.

The juvenile gullibility of the Americans in this area is an embarrassment to English people.

One English woman I got to know in America once told me that everything the Americans 'know' comes from movies.

She told me about a very rough, uneducated guy she knows with a blinding East End accent who travels around as an aristocrat celebrity in America. He worked in a fish market - a really rough job - and speaks in a ridiculously rough accent which can be best described as Really Thick (or Reel Fikk as he would say).

He calls himself Lord Somfinko-Uvver (East End London for Something or Other) He is treated accordingly, immediately accepted as English aristocracy, never has to pay a bill and is venerated as the Second Coming.

The rock stars (British Invasion) created this illusion and chancers like him were able to attach to it. But, fair play to him really - it's the Americans who need to wise up.

🌐 When Julian Assange, the editor in chief of WikiLeaks began publishing, he was immediately wanted on various rape charges. The controllers of Anglo-Saxon media desperately needed to discredit him and so they used the time-honoured tactic of throwing enough shit because some of it will stick. (Please realise that the vast majority of people are total morons - and that is how propaganda works.)

Why stop at rape, boys? Rape is a manly thing to do according to the American military throughout the many countries they invade. Surely you could find irrefutable evidence that he was Ossama Bin Laden's illegitimate love-child and his mother is a huge-hootered prostitute who is too fucked up on crack cocaine to put on a bra ... or something along these lines. You morons must admit that would be a lot more juicy. Come on, think! Surely he must be, at least, Lucifer himself.

🌐 Or maybe it is Edward Snowden that is Lucifer. Like Julian, he is an humanitarian, honest man and so, therefore, he is another arch-criminal to be hunted down and murdered by the 'intelligence' organisations and the Anglo Saxon murder machine throughout Earth.

Latest reports say that they still didn't charge him with raping babies, then eating them raw while they are still alive - but I guess something like that is coming along soon.

Americans constantly need to harken back to their Anti-Catholic, anti-Irish roots. Puritan 'burn the witch' is their principal past. There has to be a witch or two - or a whole coven.

During WW2, they were debating if Hitler or Stalin was the Coming of the Anti-Christ. Tragically, these two guys were living at the same time ... so a massive fist-fight broke out amongst the 'Religious' people about which of them was the Anti-Christ.

WASP Americans V New Americans. It is the New Americans who created what the world likes about America. The WASP Americans are what is awful about America.

But the opposite is constantly being presented on the media. The anti-Irish nightmare by the English didn't stay in Ireland. Irish refugees to America encountered the same hatred.

Bizarrely, the Jews who come to the USA have great admiration for the WASPs. Why? These are the people who perpetrated extermination on many other lovely people throughout the world - way worse than the Nazis did.

When I was a boy, like all kids in the Anglo-Saxon dominated world, I played Cowboys and Indians. And like all other boys, I wanted to be a Cowboy – no way I or anyone else wanted to be an Indian. Indians got killed by the Cowboys – even as children, we knew that. Then I got a few years older and discovered what was the reality of this nightmare for the Indians. They were being exterminated by the same people who exterminated my Irish ancestors.

There's lots of psychics in America and they are able to say who did that murder or whatever, but are not able to tell the terribly misled American people what is happening.

Many Americans are questioning (tragically, not as much as us Europeans) what their 'security forces / military 'intelligence' is up to. These people are called conspiracy theorists or just plain loonies. Truth is, they are intelligent people who have escaped the Total Moron net in which the murder machine wants all its citizens trapped. Intelligent people are inquisitive by nature and investigate what they are told not to question, which is a really big thorn in the side of the ASS murder machine.

There's no doubt that many of the attacks against the American military in the last century were orchestrated by the American military with the support of the President. The reason is always money. War is great for the economy and the fat cats can get much fatter when there's a war. Here's a few big ones ....

- World War 1: Lusitania.
- World War 2: Pearl Harbour.
- Vietnam: Gulf of Tonkin.

The Americans are really great at killing unarmed creatures. They're the best. Even the creatures they use as the symbols of their nation have been exterminated. But every time they come up against armed creatures i.e. MEN defending their country from American invasion, they really get their ass kicked. That's why they decided a while back to attack from the air. They are real heroes when they mass murder civilians from 10,000 feet.

In the USA, I once met this typical corn-bred, Mid West, Vietnam veteran guy who described the Vietnamese people as rats. I feigned surprise ...

'You mean it was the rats that kicked the American ass in Vietnam. My God. I didn't know that. It's lucky the Americans didn't meet any Vietnamese men over there.'

Between one and two million cultured Vietnamese people were massacred by illiterate, violent drugged-up scum, but he was not at all happy that I respected these people. His Protestant God had told him that they were yet another nation to be slaughtered in keeping with God's Great Manifest Destiny.

- ◆ Without doubt, the most spectacular intrigue was 9/11. (It was a little bit of the Hell that America gives constantly to other people throughout the Earth ... given back to them).
- ◆ The need for war was always paramount. Constant war is ideal for Warmongers. So, a 'War on Terror' was simply perfect for them.
- ◆ American 'intelligence' knew for years before about the planned attack on the Twin Towers. This information was extracted from gang members who were captured and severely tortured, especially in the Philippines.
- ◆ But instead of rounding up the rest of the gang, they simply colluded with them to facilitate another 'Dastardly attack on the American Homeland' just like the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbour that allowed the American Warmongers into WW2. (The three American aircraft carriers were 'strangely' not in port that day and everything in port was obsolete warships - as was the agreement they had with Japan.)

And thus began the perfect state of affairs, the never-ending war. The War on Terror. Afghanistan and Iraq were immediately invaded to keep the heroin and oil flowing to the USA. And this is just the beginning, folks.

The excuse given to the American people for the appalling 9/11 security breach was that the various Government agencies including CIA and FBI were not talking to each other. It's a great excuse except for ... HELLO! The two main security agencies working for the same government were not talking to each other. Maybe acceptable to highly medicated coffee addicts but surely not acceptable in normal society as a viable excuse. Or ... maybe it's time to tell the same people that it is the highly productive elves that manufacture the Christmas presents for Santa that are responsible for the atmospheric warming and melting of the snow at the North and South Poles.

There seems to be a never-ending supply of 'Brave Men and Women' to invade other countries and do the dirty work of the war mongers. Notice that these 'Brave Men and Women' do not include the children of the war mongers. No point in risking the life and limbs of your own children when there's a never-ending supply of grunts who supposedly believe what they are told and with no access to education that could tell them the truth.

The invaders must realise that they can kill all they want but, in the near future, Anglo-Saxon tourists and business people will have to stay at home. They will be regarded as legitimate targets everywhere. The tragedy about this is that all native English language speakers will be considered targets also, and that includes Ireland and New Zealand.

The way you stop malaria is to stop the causes of malaria, the malaria-carrying mosquitoes. The way you stop terrorism is to stop the causes of terrorism, the Anglo-Saxon mass murder machine.

The American 'security forces' followed up 9/11 with anthrax attacks to make sure that their Terror threat was 'real'

If your typical English low-life guy has committed a criminal offence in his past while he lived in England, the North Americans will say something benign like ...

'He was in trouble in Europe.'

They never say England. Except if it's positive, of course.

'While living in England, he was a beloved member of the pony club.'

Co-incidence? Definitely not.

***** from my website section 'Amadawn' *******

- You're living in corporate totalitarianism ... a coalition of money-worshipping dictatorships.
- To succeed, it needs to control your thoughts as much as possible.
- And its main weapon is advertising.
- It wants you all living in isolation from each other ... fearing everything.
- And endlessly consuming its products on the only information outlet it wants you to access ... the television.
- You have become junkies of fear and violence ... and the dealer of this drug is the media.

When the hurricane devastated New Orleans, many Americans were asking ....
'How could America be so unprepared to deal with this tragedy?'

Why do these people still not realise that America is not designed for Defence. It is designed for Attack. And they are hardly going to attach a hurricane ... there's no oil or valuable resources there. Let the non Anglo Saxons die. It's just culling of the black population.

Nature itself is something incomparably beautiful but in Anglo-Saxon documentaries Nature is always very violent and dangerous. Only Lions and other killers in the savannah lands and especially sharks (with a few venomous snakes and crocodiles thrown in) are given constant coverage.

And the preservation of the natural world is always presented on television by someone who has learned the British Accent. It was the Brits who not only mass murdered all the cultured people in all the countries they invaded throughout all the continents on Earth - they also mass murdered the wonderful animals as well - their heads are hung on all the walls of the 'quality' houses of England - especially the royal families.

So, why is this shit being presented as a genuine report? It's because of a well-orchestrated drive by your government to keep you blindingly stupid and not questioning anything that is clearly absurd to a semi-literate fart.

This scary situation in America was best summed up during the Regan presidency. Regan represented the good old values of America ... decent, wholesome and straight. And an actor. What more could you want? Especially the actor part. During his presidency, America was about to end the world again.

This time a Korean civilian airplane was shot down by the Russians killing all on board. Ronnie went on the warpath, attacking everything about this Evil Empire. It was another nail-biting time for the world. Within a week or two, I got to know the real story.

The American military had been using civilian planes to fly over Russian military bases taking photos. The Russians had warned America time and time again to stop this illegal activity or they will have no option but to shoot the plane down.

Naturally, none of this appeared in Western media and the American murder machine laughed and ignored them. They thought the Russians would never risk the international condemnation of such an act. So, the Russians had no choice but to act and, to my knowledge, it succeeded in stopping the Americans doing what they had been doing.

There was no doubt in my young mind then that Regan knew absolutely what the real story was – I mean he was the Commander in chief of the armed forces ... was he not? But, as I got older, I realised that the truth is even more horrible than that. Ronnie probably knew nothing about what his military were doing. He was a total moron with no desire to educate himself. That is why they allowed him to be president of the United States of America. Jesus.

Anglo-Saxon tourists and business people must inevitably become targets throughout the world. The only way America will destroy this new 'terrorist' enemy is to destroy the rest of the world. And if they destroy the rest of the world – they will destroy themselves. Not a good plan – even for the morons who control the Anglo-Saxon murder machine.

Come on all you terrorists! The ASS have all of Satan's firepower, but you have the brains and culture. You, therefore, have 10 times their firepower. But you must fire in another direction. Don't confront like with like. Find a new path and you will beat this trash.

The Spanish, Portuguese and French colonists to the Americas were far fewer in number than the Anglo colonisation. They wanted to integrate the native people into their ways, the Anglos wanted to exterminate the natives, and they did.

Roosevelt hated Imperialism (in keeping with a long American tradition) and had big problems with Churchill's Imperialism. But soon America was going to embark on a foreign policy that would make it worse than any country before it. What happened America?

When I was young doing Anthropology in university and the three separate evolutions of mankind ... the Java, the Negroid and the Caucasoid. Asians (Java) are about 200,000 years more evolved than the rest of us. All I can say is, if the English can fool you then what will an Asian do. So, before an Asian kid wipes out your entire financial and military systems – get an Asian kid to run your country. Do it now!

Barnaby Wilde (Born to be wild) is the all-American fun-time guy. No respect for anyone, a bully and a coward. A uncultured, loud-mouth cretin endlessly consuming and demanding more (except, of course, a proper education).

You guys need Barnaby Wilde running your country. For sure, he is to be your next president. He doesn't have to do anything. He just has to stand there and flex his muscles. Chuck Norris is the hero to be aspired to. And, again, I say 'tell him not to do or say anything'. Until he runs the USA into the ground which he invariably will, the secret is, do not let him drag the cultured world into the ground with it. There will be severe ramifications. (Sorry about the big word - it means 'bad things will happen' America.)

In America you were born with advantages that were crafted for you throughout generations of American history. Remember you must be prepared to die for these advantages and freedoms – because you will definitely die without them.

But, for me, I would rather die in Europe than live in America. Culture is a heavy cross that you are doomed to carry all your life. You can't throw it away or even leave it down for a rest. But I'd prefer to die with culture than live without it.

The modern obsession with Tattoos is difficult to understand. Not only are they mind-bendingly ugly and stupid, tattoos are age identifiers. A 'best before' date.

In the Czech Republic everyone is given a number at birth – imaginatively called your Birth Number. This number containing your date of birth is your ID which you must carry at all times and woe betide you if you don't have it on you when one of the three police forces stop you for questioning.

Americans baulk at this invasion of privacy. No way would any freedom lovin' true blue American carry such an identifier. And the first thing they do when they reach the age of reason (did I say reason?) is ape the prevailing fashion of their times – even to the point of indelibly marking their body which will identify their age for evermore. Tattoos.

In the near future the early tattoos will not be fashionable any more and debutants will be indelibly marking their bodies for life with very heavy hexagonal blocks or something just as 'cool'.

Tragically, the bearer of the new tattoos will be as cool as the hexagonal fashion lasts and will soon be dated – forever with his or her very uncool tattoos. The age of the persons will be identified by the marks on their bodies. Jesus! For a 'solution' to this Tattoo problem ...

American Movie and TV 'heroes' are always heavily muscle-bound and are able to vanquish any opposition. This is because every time they meet equal men in a fair fight – they get their ass seriously kicked.

Americans now think it's heroic to bomb the shit out of defenceless civilians from an aeroplane – too high for the defenceless people to stop them.

They are now breeding a generation of cowards who think that being a coward is heroic. A man who kills women and children is not a cowardly scumbag – he is a hero.

But the teenager who takes a few machine guns to school and kills defenceless teenagers is not a hero. Can any American explain this conundrum to people who are not American and not cowards.

When they were slaughtering Indians – as it was the usual Anglo-Saxon behaviour throughout the Earth – they did it every day. Except on the Sabbath. God bless them.

These mass murdering scum observed the Sabbath. As far as we know there was no slaughtering done on a Sunday – except maybe for the few non-religious Protestants who didn't care for the Sabbath and couldn't resist the thrill of murdering defenceless Indians.

I've just watched a programme on TV called the 30 most evil men in world history. Not one of them was an Anglo-Saxon. Surely the people who invaded all continents on Earth and killed anyone who opposed them deserved to be on that list. If not half of the list. But, it appears, not one of them was Anglo-Saxon.

Ted Bundy : 'Why is porn available'? Can you please make porn illegal and not available.

He knew very well what causes the majority of crime in America. But his comments like that were removed because the people who control society make huge money from the very thing he identified as the causes of murder and degradation - porn, violence and crime.

This obsession and addiction to violence on their TV and movie screens has now become necessary. The huge money involved means it will not be stopped. The murdered and destroyed people mean nothing. That is why the Muslims call America the Great Satan.

People do not research or read any more - they just use Social Media. It is just the misspelled, monosyllabic retard phrase or half sentence on social media that is acceptable to them - and it's not just idiots like Donald Trump. Kim Kardassian is the modern Leonardo Da Vinci in this Dumbing Down nightmare we are living in. So, you can see how porn and violence works on children and adults in our modern society. Big success, isn't it?

The Anglo-Saxon Dictionary (again)

Gentlemen = Scumbags who gets themselves into positions where they amasses wealth / power / influence / prestige etc. at the expense of non-gentlemen who are called men.

Developed Countries = Countries that have reached a level where they are destroying forever the delicate natural balance that has taken millions of years to evolve to a point where the complexity of life on the Earth can be sustained and enhanced.

Developing Countries = Countries that are soon to be reaching a level where they will be able to destroy forever the delicate natural balance that has taken millions of years to evolve to a point where the complexity of life on the Earth can be sustained and enhanced.

The ASS did not stop at just killing humans in every continent on Earth, they also killed every creature they could. Special guns were developed to best kill the larger animals. After being killed, many were stuffed and sold to museums etc. but the majority were beheaded and their noble heads mounted on the walls of the large estate houses of Anglo Saxon scum.

In America, the buffalo were exterminated. Mountains of dead buffalo were proudly displayed as a glorious example of Protestant Manifest Destiny because it meant that the cultured Native Americans, who relied on the buffalo for everything - especially food and warmth - would be exterminated also.

In the modern American military, if you kill a man (especially a lot of men) you will get honoured profusely and awarded medals etc. But if you love a man (even a lot of men) you will get sacked from the military with a Dishonourable Discharge.

That's all for now, folks. But I'm not finished yet. Stay tuned ...
